Macmillan to Quit As Prime Minister

I'll Renounce Title Says Contender

BLACKPOOL, England (Reuters)—Lord Hailsham, one of the three contenders for the prime ministership, announced here Thursday night that he intends to renounce his title.

Hailsham's resignation meant he would be able to run for a seat in the House of Commons which is necessary if he is to be considered for the leadership of the Conservative Party.

Hailsham Will Be Tory Choice

By E. D. WARD HARRIS

Who will succeed Macmillan as Britain's prime minister? My guess is that it will be the excellent Lord Hailsham.

After a bitter behind-the-scenes battle between the supporters of Deputy Prime Minister R. A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald Maudling and Science Minister Lord Hailsham, the latter will be chosen.

As is customary in British Conservative Party circles, the ranks will close behind the new leader.

Note that I have said that the new leader will be "chosen," not elected.

Unique

This, too, is a unique Party device. The Tory Establishment of the day has always chosen the leader and the rank and file has always been expected to accept the choice.

Whether they liked it or not, they always have accepted because with the Tories, party unity is paramount.

On this occasion there is an intriguing difference from any previous leadership decision. Whether Macmillan was compelled to have his operation at this time, or whether he deliberately chose to do so, it happens that for the first time a new party leader has to be found while the Establishment and the rank and file are in conference.

Demand

The rank and file—the constituency groups—may demand a say in the decision, and with the Press looking over its shoulder, the Establishment, one would think, would have to give ground.

It's an interesting speculation, but it won't occur. Tradition dies hard in a traditional diehard party.

Apart from Butler, Maudling and Hailsham.

Chords Lost Again

ENBOURNE, England (AP)—For the second time in a month someone has silenced the organ in the church in this Berkshire village by stealing some of the organ's pipes.

Who would steal them? "The answer is obvious," said Rev. Peter Talbot. "It must be someone trying to build an organ of his own."

LONDON (CP)—Ailing Harold Macmillan is stepping down as Britain's prime minister.

The "unflappable Mac," who took over the government in the wake of the Suez crisis, then led his Conservative party to victory in 1959 elections, made public his decision Thursday. He said he will not be well enough to lead the party into battle next year or to fulfill the tasks of prime minister for any lengthy period.

LONG CONVALESCENCE

He underwent a successful operation here Thursday for removal of his prostate gland. A long period of convalescence lies ahead. He is 69 and has been prime minister since Jan. 10, 1957.

He left it indefinite when he will resign as prime minister, but this will be after the party names a new leader.

QUEEN INFORMED

Macmillan's announcement in a letter to the party was disclosed a few hours after he left the operating table. After saying he would not be well enough to lead the Tories into battle at next year's election, Macmillan added: "Nor could I hope to fulfill the tasks of prime minister for any extended period. I have so informed the Queen."

After nearly seven years in office, Macmillan's decision came at a low point in his career. Buffeted by the Profumo affair and other national crises,

Victoria to England

Trip Succeeds Victim Wakes

OLDHAM, England (Reuters)—Mrs. Mary Holden, a 59-year-old English widow severely injured in a car crash in Victoria, regained consciousness here Thursday—three months after the accident.

She was flown across the Atlantic in a deep coma and was admitted to hospital here two weeks ago.

Mrs. Holden was vacationing in British Columbia when a car in which she was a passenger was involved in an accident. Nine weeks later doctors in Victoria decided she might regain consciousness more quickly if the voices of her relatives and friends in Oldham could penetrate her coma.

Thursday a hospital spokesman said Mrs. Holden was now "fully conscious" and "apparently able to understand fully what is going on around her."

Congress Votes to Bar Moon Shot with Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives voted Thursday to ban U.S. cooperation with any Communist country in exploration of the moon.

It wrote the ban into the 1961 U.S. space agency's appropriation bill by a standing vote of 123 to 110. It was proposed by Representative Thomas M. Pelly (Rep. Wash.) and backed heavily by Republicans and southern Democrats.

standards are far below those of other NATO navies. Testifying to the Committee on defense Thursday, he described case after case of deterioration of equipment, poor equipping of new ships, shortage of skilled personnel, and ill-preparedness.

"We weren't prepared at the time of the Cuban crisis and we wouldn't be now," he said.

He agreed the navy had gone to sea with ammunition during the October crisis—but that the forward guns on one ship were inoperable, many ships had no endurance, and that the tribal class destroyers had numerous breakdowns and deficiencies.

Questioned about the state of the Canadian fleet, Commodore Plomer said it was "far below the proper standards, compared to those of other NATO navies."

He blamed a "lack of ethics and integrity" in operating the service "in an atmosphere of ignorance compounded by arrogance."

He charged that present top-ranking officers, members of the naval board, cover up for failings of members of the "private club"—officers selected for

B.C. Man Owes Millions

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States government obtained a judgment for more than $15,000,000 in federal district court Thursday against Albert A. McLennan, a retired Canadian distillery executive, for back income taxes.

Federal officials said they believed the judgment was the largest ever obtained by the U.S. government in New York State.

U.S. Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau said the judgment was obtained by default against McLennan, 73, of Cloverdale, B.C., a fugitive since 1954.

The judgment, covering unpaid income taxes, penalties and interest accruing from taxes due on liquor sales in New York State during the Second World War, totaled $15,387,561, Morgenthau said.

Dam Disaster

Bodies Litter River

BELLUNO, Italy (AP)—Thousands of relief workers toiled to recover the dead and succor survivors of the Vajont reservoir disaster, which Italians estimated killed 3,000 persons. Italy was a nation in mourning.

Scientists suspected an earthquake loosed the avalanche that dropped like a rock from Mount Tovo into the deep, four-mile-long reservoir Wednesday night and cascaded millions of tons of water over the Vajont hydro-electric dam onto a sleeping countryside.

FLATTENED VILLAGES

Flattened villages dotted the valleys of the lower Vajont and upper Piave rivers below the dam, a reinforced concrete, 875-foot-tall structure that is the third—highest dam in the world.

The disaster was in the Alps of northern Italy. An earthquake was recorded in the area at 10:53 p.m. Wednesday.

HAMLETS SWALLOWED

Witnesses said the water first splashed about 300 yards up the mountainside and swallowed two hamlets, then roared southward over the dam and down the valleys toward the Adriatic Sea, sweeping away whole villages, farms, roads and railway tracks.

Bodies of villagers and animals lay half buried in mud along the banks of the Piave. Dozens of bodies floated downstream on the 32-foot crest of the flood. Several were recovered as far as 36 miles downstream.

American troops and airmen joined 10,000 Italian soldiers, police, firemen and Red Cross workers in the relief operations and a move to avert a new calamity—the helicopter transfer of isolated villagers from the area of Mount Tovo threatened by another avalanche.

The monster dam withstood the onslaught of mud and water. Only an upper corner was ripped away, apparently by the landslide.

Round of Gaiety

Passengers Living It Up

QUEBEC (CP)—An Alberta girl says the liner Empress of Canada is treating its strikebound passengers like royalty.

Jean Johnson of High River, Alta., said Thursday passengers are being entertained from the moment they get up until after dark with games, dances, movies and other activity.

"They're going all out to keep us happy," she said in a ship-to-shore interview.

"The only thing is we're not getting any newspapers." The ship has been anchored off nearby Ile D'Orleans since Tuesday as a result of the longshoremen's strike, which prevents the vessel from landing passengers.

Miss Johnson said the passengers have kept up to date on the strike by listening to the radio. Although they had no idea when the vessel would move, morale was high.

"On the whole, people are accepting it very well."

Empress Nears Deadline

QUEBEC (CP)—The Empress of Canada, rebuffed from discharging her passengers here by the St. Lawrence River dock strike, was prevented Thursday night from making a run for Montreal where a court order has restricted the activities of strikers.

The transport department's signal service here said the striking longshoremen stopped a pilot from boarding the 27,300-ton vessel, and the skipper of the liner apparently decided against attempting the trip at night without an experienced guide.

A spokesman for the signal service said the service was told the liner would return to an anchorage off the island of Orleans.

Plans for the trip to Montreal called for the liner—commanded by Capt. W. S. (Bill) Main, skipper of a British Navy submarine in the Second World War—to pick up a pilot while travelling at reduced speed past the Levis ferry dock.

Witnesses said the ship stopped and then turned around. A CPR spokesman said the Empress' deadline for attempting to dock is today, and the ship may have to return to England or leave her passengers off at some other port.

Union Trustee Bill Has Sharp Teeth

OTTAWA (CP)—Any person convicted of obstructing or hindering government trusteeship over marine unions in Canada will be liable to fines of $10,000 and jail terms of two years, the government disclosed Thursday night in its proposed trusteeship legislation.

The 10-page bill was given first reading in the Commons. (See also Page 35.)

Sergeant Sold Secrets Then Killed Himself

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A U.S. army sergeant who worked for the top secret National Security Agency received an estimated $60,000 from Russia for secret documents but killed himself when his high living gave him away, it was learned yesterday.

The sergeant was identified as Jack Edward Dunlap, 35, who killed himself in Glen Burnie, Md., July 23.

The agency deals with military intelligence, particularly codes of the U.S. and foreign powers. Its work is perhaps the most secret of all government agencies. It is a branch of the military establishment.

Dunlap was believed to have smuggled documents out of the NSA headquarters over more than two years.

The defence department said Dunlap had been relieved of duty several weeks before he killed himself.

WE'LL STEP IN SAYS OTTAWA

MONTREAL (AP, UPI)—Negotiators, racing against time to head off possible federal intervention, huddled Thursday in a last-ditch effort to settle voluntarily the week-old St. Lawrence dock strike which has virtually paralyzed wheat shipments to Russia.

The top man of the longshoremen's union sat in for the first time.

The talks were well under way when an injunction granted by Quebec Superior Court in Montreal prohibited picketing on or about Montreal Harbor property, banned large gatherings of members of unions there and prohibited intimidation of members of other unions and of harbor clients.

WEEK-OLD

These developments came after Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson warned that his government is prepared to do "whatever necessary" to halt the week-old walkout.

Montreal Judge Rene Lippe, federal mediator in the bitter dispute, went into session at mid-afternoon with negotiators for the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) and the Shipping Federation of Canada (SFC).

The ILA's international president, Teddy Gleason of New York, entered the meeting in the downtown Montreal hotel saying he is determined "to do all I can to settle this thing."

He said he felt the longshoremen are confused about the issues and cannot understand why talks have gone on so long.

Some Wheat Moves

MONTREAL (CP)—A survey disclosed Thursday that some wheat is moving down the St. Lawrence River and overseas to Russia from Baie Comeau and Sorel, two ports not directly affected by the longshoremen's strike which has brought the harbors of Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec to a standstill.

An official at Baie Comeau, 220 miles northeast of Quebec, said there is no union at the port and operations have been continuing normally.

Cloud Cast on Every Officer, Says MP

OTTAWA (CP)—John Lloyd (L-Halifax) Thursday accused retired Commodore James Plomer of casting a cloud over the reputation of every officer in the Royal Canadian Navy.

Commodore Plomer, a committee witness for 3½ hours, said he is willing to cite "case after case" to substantiate his charges but that he would do this only "in confidence."

"I am not here to destroy people's characters," he said. He would be willing to name names in a closed session of the committee.

Donald MacInnis (PC-Cape Breton South) asked Commodore Plomer whether he was saying in effect: "It is who you know, not what you know" in the navy.

Commodore Plomer agreed. Commodore Plomer said that "for the sake of people's feelings" he would give names "under confidential circumstances."

Committee chairman Maurice Sauve (L—Îles-de-la-Madeleine) said he would take the matter under advisement.

The navy may reply to

Commodore Plomer's charges at Tuesday's committee meeting.

Grant Dauchman (L—Vancouver Quadra) said the navy deserves a "return engagement" in the near future.

Hailsham's the Man

King and Hailsham, there are, of course, other possibilities. These include party chairman Iain Macleod, Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath, and Foreign Secretary the Earl of Home.

Home can be ruled out right away. He doesn't want the job. Anxious for a long time to retire to tend his extensive estates, Home has stayed put solely as the bait of his long-time friend, Harold Macmillan. He'll serve the new leader for a decent interval, and will then retire for good.

The fact that Lord Home is one peer who wouldn't dream of renouncing his ancient title, would in itself deter him from sitting in the House of Commons, and in this day and age nothing less would satisfy the public.

Able Men

Iain Macleod and Edward Heath, both able men with first-class minds, lack both a personal following and a public image. With either of these men as leader, the Tories couldn't hope to win next year's election, because there simply isn't time to "build the image" and overhaul the head start that Labor Party leader Harold Wilson has also already won.

That leaves Butler, Maudling and Hailsham.

All three are well known and respected.

Allergy Often Found Cause Of Nose Forever Dripping

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes my nose to be forever dripping in a watery fashion? Nose drops help a little but not much. What can I do if anything?—Mrs. A.H.

It could be sinus infection, but I doubt it, because the secretions in such a case are not watery. They are thicker.

It could be an allergy. If this condition is mostly in the morning (or during the night) then suspect something related to bedtime. Some people are allergic to the feathers in a pillow, and find relief by switching to a foam rubber pillow. (Or vice versa.)

Or you may be sensitive to some cosmetic. Do you habitually use a cream on your face when you go to bed? If so, try omitting it for a few nights and see if that makes a difference.

If the drip is an all-day problem, watch carefully to see if there are certain days when it does NOT trouble you. Then you may be able to figure out what is different about those days—what you did NOT touch or see or smell that you usually do.

An examination of the nose would, probably, disclose such a condition very readily.

Dear Dr. Molner: This is just a short thank-you note. I read the letter from a person who complained of itching, and you told him not to brush it off too lightly because at times it can be a sign of diabetes.

My husband has had an "itch" for two years and was advised to use talcum, as it might be from perspiration. However, I sent him to a doctor and tests showed diabetes.

I'm sure he will find relief just knowing he is being treated properly.—Mrs. R.S.

Yes, treating the diabetes will relieve the itching and, of course, will guard him against more serious consequences of the disorder. Every little itch doesn't mean diabetes, but when it continues and has no other explanation, diabetes should be suspected.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will you please recommend a plastic surgeon in my area?—S.K.E.

I cannot recommend specific physicians or surgeons. When you require a specialist (including a plastic surgeon) consult your regular doctor or call the local medical society, which will give you the names of several specialists of proved qualifications. You can also contact the head of the appropriate department in a hospital of your choice.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it all right to heat a whole jar of baby food when only a part of it is to be used? The remaining portion is then refrigerated and reheated. Or is it safer to put just the portion to be used into another container to be heated?—E.C.B.

You can do it either way—the important thing is to be sure the remainder is refrigerated between heatings.

Macmillan Resigns

he was under heavy party pressure to quit even before he was struck by illness Tuesday.

The letter was written Wednesday after his doctors had diagnosed a bladder obstruction. Despite the opinion of medical experts that he might make a swift recovery, the resignation announcement went ahead.

The letter was read by Foreign Secretary Earl of Home at the annual Conservative party convention in Blackpool, some 200 miles north of London. The news was a shock to the 4,000 delegates.

Lord Home told the convention that he talked with Macmillan Wednesday and the prime minister later sent him the letter asking that it be read to the convention.

Later Home said in a television interview that it was unlikely a new party leader would be selected before the convention ended Saturday. There is no set pattern for choosing a new party leader.

promotion through marriage ties and on the basis of personal friendship.

"It's pure Tammany Hall without any voters to worry about," he added.

Commodore Plomer was called before the committee as a result of a searing magazine article he wrote during the summer about the state of the navy.

He told the committee the navy was suffering from a critical internal "sickness" that could only be remedied by "surgery" at the top.

In a 16-page brief, he said "hundreds of thousands" of dollars were being wasted every year because of "ignorance and prejudice."

"Errors in promotions," Commodore Plomer continued, "have left the executive branch with over 30 of its 99 commanders not qualified, or unsuitable for command."

He gave the committee a list of suggestions:

● Scrapping of the RCN's frigate program, which he said was unsound, economically and practically, for its assignments.

● Priority should be given the construction of submarines.

● Before new ships are delivered, untried electronic and mechanical equipment should not be installed until it is certain it will not be subject to the speedy degeneration common in the past.

● Priority should be given to helicopters for surface vessels.

● Effective anti-aircraft defences for the fleet are needed.

● Modifications are required on the aircraft carrier

"It was a depression year, it was a good year, opportunities were scarce, opportunities were everywhere, fortune frowned, fortune smiled, one man was in the depths of despair, one man was riding the crest."

Probably, the explanation is simple.

One man, having given no heed for tomorrow was wallowing in self pity because no opportunities came his way.

The other, with a solid financial background, saw avenues of progress on every hand. This man had wisely purchased sufficient permanent personal life insurance so that he had the financial stability to be offered chances of advancement—and the borrowing power, if need be, to take advantage of them.

The secret of success is often as simple as that. Today you can make plans for a brighter financial future. MACDONALD'S
"KING OF THE 3-ROOM GROUPS"

A Tragic Blunder

ON WEDNESDAY of this week Prime Minister Pearson announced that his government had now granted permission to the United States to stockpile nuclear weapons on Canadian soil for the sole and independent use of American air force interceptor aircraft.

Through this surprising shift of policy Mr. Pearson has now committed Canada to a course which not only negates his most solemn election pledge to the Canadian people but seriously weakens what little claim to independence of action Canada still possesses.

Never at any time during the federal election did Mr. Pearson reveal to the public that it was his party's intention to allow the United States to use Canada as a convenient and subsidiary nuclear store house for America's armed forces.

On the contrary Mr. Pearson told the voters that a Liberal government would agree to accept nuclear weapons for Canada's military services only because he sincerely believed that the Conservative government had already committed the country to such a course.

Indeed, he made much of his personal abhorrence of the idea of Canada possessing such lethal weapons. But, he said, it was a matter of honor. And once this duty had been met, he pledged, he would bend every effort to renegotiate his way out of the alleged commitment.

But far from attempting to meet this promise, Mr. Pearson has proceeded in the opposite direction—not only has he accepted nuclear weapons for Canada but has gone to the extreme of allowing a foreign—though allied—nation the independent right of establishing nuclear bases on Canadian territory over which neither his nor any succeeding government will have even the slightest authority.

So much for the national aspect of Mr. Pearson's secret and underhanded action. But what international repercussions has he risked in setting this new and irresponsible policy?

Perhaps former external affairs minister Howard Green, a man whose opinion on world affairs is still valued highly throughout the globe, best sums it up by telling the Liberal government's decision "a tragic blunder."

The blunder, he says, "comes at a time when there is a lessening of tension in the world brought about by the agreement to end nuclear tests in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space."

The former Canadian government took the lead in advocating these steps to reduce the risk of war. Mr. Green comments, but now instead of following a similar line Mr. Pearson's government is moving the other way.

He concludes with this: "It is obvious Canada will have no control over the use of these warheads by the American forces and Mr. Pearson's latest action has put our country in very much the same position with regard to the United States as Cuba was last fall when the Russians installed nuclear weapons on Cuban territory."

These are strong words indeed, but coming from Mr. Green they are words which Canadians would be wise to heed.

Back in Force

CONSERVATIVE party fortunes may be in the doldrums in B.C. but they flourish down east. Following close on the heels of Ontario's sweeping victory over the Liberals the voters of Nova Scotia have this week returned the Conservative administration there by an overwhelming majority, almost wiping the opposition out completely.

Thirty-nine seats to a mere four opposition seats is too one-sided to be in the best interests of government anywhere, but it reflects the hold Premier Stanfield has gained ever since he ended 23 years of Liberal office seven years ago. Unlike B.C. there has been no Social Credit movement to absorb and thus change the face of the Conservative party.

Were it not for this there would be a heartening moral to be drawn by Mr. Fulton, for in 1956 the Nova Scotia Conservatives went straight from no seats at all to dominating power in the provincial legislature.

There was no reversal in the Atlantic province as in Ontario in relation to the federal vote of last April, for then also the Conservatives of Nova Scotia swept the boards. Patently they are solidly entrenched, to a degree that must encourage the party elsewhere and bring corresponding disquiet to Liberal ranks.

Mr. Douglas can draw no comfort from the Nova Scotia election either, for the NDP was shut out of the legislature entirely, renewing the impression that its influence is on the wane there as in other parts of the country.

The Green Eye

THERE WILL be the green eye behind the suggestion of a Vancouver music critic that our symphony orchestra should merge with the mainland city's orchestra.

The fact that the smaller area of Victoria can sustain with better percentage patronage its own symphonic musical group has always irked Vancouver, which likes to believe that size is the criterion of quality.

There is of course another factor. Were the two orchestras to merge this would mean a larger Canada Council grant for Vancouver, and it is herein that the jealousy will lie. Any such merger of course would obliterate Victoria entirely, for a so-called B.C. orchestra would simply be a Vancouver one.

The mainland critic's disparaging comment as to the musicianship of our orchestra can be dismissed for the small value it is worth, however. Our local players can hold their end up with confidence.

Above all the Victoria orchestra is our own and we mean to hang on to it. The feeler put out by the mainland city can be easily ignored. This is the capital city and it has a capital musical scene and appreciation.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and scaling waxes..."
By TOM TAYLOR

THEY come every year, enveloped in an aura of white heather. It should be purple. Purple is a regal color, you know.

And right royal they are, usually, fit company for the boards of a theatre bearing this name.

The concert party is the same always, yet different. Neil Kirk, the Dundonian who fits thrice yearly across the Atlantic from his New York theatrical office, sees to that. The offering is constant: wit, song and music of abundant quality; but the performers change, in whole or in part.

That ensures variety and continuing appeal. And no audience can wish for more.

So it was at the Royal on Tuesday evening last, when a packed house revelled in the current edition of Mr. Kirk's choice. He picked his entertainers well.

In this realm and its modern wide-ranging media, new stars are born overnight. Andy Stewart would have his apprenticeship, no doubt, but he rocketed to our local notice two years ago with the song he wrote and sang to capture a world audience, to wit: "The Scottish Soldier."

Even if you never heard of the White Heather concert troupe you couldn't have missed hearing this old pipe tune put to words and given a fresh haunting fillip. It's been on the local radio time and again.

That's what this young—mere 29 years—old and puckish figure does. He delves into favorite airs and renews them with original lyrics. In a different guise this is what Burns did, although we aren't told if he ever sang them himself. What a pity recording hadn't been invented in his day.

Mr. Stewart has an advantage over his competitors, you see; he can write his own songs. Indeed I believe that in his moments off-stage on Tuesday night he wrote himself a new one.

But much more than that is his versatility. He can sing, and dance too by the looks of him. Tell jokes that would make Bob Hope envious, do impersonations and character sketches, and...

He's got personality. While Mr. Stewart may be a native personality alone that endows a man to stand with aplomb before presidents or generals. Unless Mr. Stewart has been visiting the White House or the War Office I doubt he's worried himself much with VIPs of this ilk, but of aplomb on a stage...

Well, to repeat a hackneyed phrase, he's got it. He holds an audience in the palm of his hand. Patently he was born lucky, filled to the brim with talent, and, being young, with an infectious vitality. Of himself he is easily the most purple patch this white heather troupe has brought to decorate the local scene.

Youth will out, I suppose. Mr. Kirk added another newcomer to titillate our senses in the person of Arthur Spink, a boy not yet old enough to vote but yet with dextrous fingers and a fine feeling for his art. His forte is the accordion, and for Victoria white heather patrons it's enough perhaps to say he reminded them of the magic name of Willie Starr.

This lad has a fine entertainment career ahead of him, that seems certain.

It's not fair for them to deserve better, but if I'm to mention the other artists who merit the audience home filled with honest enjoyment, and that I feel must do, there's scant room left. Briefly however, if the soul of wit, can also be a tribute of some worth.

There was Dennis Clancy, who's been here before, happily, who must have inherited his silver tenor voice from his Irish father, a vocalist of fine style and decided pleasure. And his vice-versa of the opposite sex, Jill Howard, whom we haven't heard before but who will be warmly welcomed again if Mr. Kirk takes the hint and brings her back. Not to mention Harry Carmichael, who provides the hands of a pianist without which singers would be sadly bereft, and the perennial Jimmy Neil, an able performer in his own right who as emcee wields the show together.

In truth, if I may repeat myself, a white heather group in purple adornment.

Today In History

A brilliant new chapter in the annals of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police was added 21 years ago today—in 1942—when the police schooner St. Roch arrived in Halifax after the first west-coast traverse of the Northwest Passage. One of the eight-man crew died of a heart attack as the schooner wintered in the ice less than 30 miles from the magnetic pole. The St. Roch had sailed from Vancouver in the summer of 1940.

1888—The Boer War broke out in South Africa.

1815—Champlain suffered a defeat at the hands of the Senecas.

Nelson's Sleeping Cabin.

Trafalgar Look for Victory

By JOHN REIDY, British Information Services

IT is hard to believe, as you stand on the quarter deck of the oldest, perhaps, the most famous warship in the world, that she will never sail again. Her masts and rigging appear to vibrate with life, her flags fly proudly, and every part of her timbers seems to be eager to be off before the wind into some great, new adventure.

All round her in the bustling naval dockyard at Portsmouth, in England, craft large and small come and go—sleek, grey cruisers with radar scanners twisting, fussy black tugs nudging and hauling, jolly boats and barges plying to and fro—yet Victory, though far from dead, will never again be lifted by the tide. She lies in a bed of concrete, a memorial to the sailors of a bygone age, and a lasting inspiration to people of all lands.

Victory fought many battles after her launching in 1763, with Trafalgar her most outstanding one. But there have been several others since—battles against rot, woodworm and the death-watch beetle—and she has fared rather badly, her once strong heart of oak now being anything but sound.

It was once feared that she would end on the scrapheap, but there was such a cry of protest from the British people that it was decided to preserve her. Today, she is being restored and refurbished so that she will look almost exactly as she did before the Battle of Trafalgar 158 years ago.

Work is already well advanced on the living quarters of Lord Nelson. His day cabin in the stern of the 104-gun ship has been freshly painted, and the furnishings include two tables which were in daily use by him, on one of which he composed his famous prayer on the eve of the Battle of Trafalgar, and around which he discussed plans with his officers.

The only change is that the windows and ports, which were once of thin horn, are now of glass. Here, also, in this bright cabin in an atmosphere full of history, is a musical box which once belonged to Captain George Duff, of Mars, who was killed at Trafalgar.

In Nelson's sleeping cabin is his suspended cot, with replicas of the original drapings made by Lady Hamilton. It is grimly situated between two huge guns—a reminder that even admirals had not much privacy in a fighting ship.

The day cabin connects with the great cabin, which is still used by the Commander-in-Chief, Portsmouth, as a dining cabin for special occasions. The color scheme is a faithful copy of that existing at the time of Trafalgar—white, light blue and gold—and the furnishings include tables and chairs of the period.

The work of restoration is far from complete and will go on for several years. The rudder is in course of repair and the threat from beetle and woodworm calls for constant inspection and counter-attack. The next big step, however, will be to furnish the quarters of Nelson's old and trusted friend, Captain Hardy, a giant of a man—he was 6 feet 4½ inches tall—who had to have a special keyhole cut into his cabin so that he would not bruise his head on the low beams.

Each year, on October 21, a service is commemorated the anniversary of the Battle of Trafalgar is held in Victory. Before the service begins, Nelson's signal "England Expects Every Man Will Do His Duty" is hoisted and a wreath laid over the place on the quarter deck where he was shot. Other wreaths are placed in the cockpit, below decks, where he died.

The cockpit is kept as a shrine to Nelson, and it is here that can be seen the remarkable painting by Arthur Davis depicting the last minutes in the life of Britain's greatest sailor. Here, too, is the wooden "knee" of the beam against which Nelson was laid, which is inscribed simply "Here Nelson died."

While the tremendous task of keeping the Victory together goes on, visitors from all parts of the world go aboard—in all weathers and all seasons. They number 250,000 each year. There can be no wonder at the crowds when you realize that Victory is full of the drama and tradition of the sea and has enjoyed more exploits than any other ship. Not only has she been in commission for more than a century and a half, but still flies the flag of the Commander-in-Chief and is still manned by British bluejackets.

Bright and Brave

By CASSANDRA

SCARBOROUGH — Yesterday, by the bankruptcy of political events at this political bonanza of the 62nd Annual Conference of the Labour Party, I was forced to say that one of the more notable occurrences at this Yorkshire seaside resort was that the tide came in and out.

But something has happened since I was reporting the inevitable and the obvious trivia of yesterday.

A great floodtide of intelligence and passion swamped the assembly by speech that Harold Wilson made on the subject of Science and Education.

It could so easily have been as dry as the unwashed debris on the top shelf of a library.

In fact, it was pure stardust. A vision of the future, of the mind harnessed for the betterment of the people who live in this overcrowded land of ours. What he said was bold, magnificent stuff.

It was so good and so inspiring—I think that is the word—and to me surprising, because of what I conceive to be the nature of the man who said it.

The doubt about Wilson that has always been in many people's minds about his intellectual detachment, his cerebral horsepower and the bloodlessness of the man.

His speech was to the faintly disillusioned of us, wonderful stuff with the old touch of pure gold in the sleeve that brings delight to the pragmatic's rheumy eye.

"Mr. Wilson's theme was 'The Mutations of Peace'—the enormous opportunities that are at the disposal of the technical which we breed, export and discard in Britain."

He told us of the terrifying disadvantage we are in, in higher education compared with the up and coming power complex in the world—and Russia in particular.

Of how the best brains that we have leave these shores, not only for money, but for an environment that is more congenial in terms of interest and respect for sciences.

And the wickedness (and this rightly drew response from his audience) of the fact that today 38,000 boys and girls leaving school cannot find jobs; and get the most damaging rebuff that any young person can receive—the feeling that nobody wants him or her, tell, enthusiasm or potential skill.

He dealt with the "delirium of advertising" and the passion for creating a demand for which there is no real want in a hungry, sick and undernourished world.

With all self-criticism he recalled how Swift had once said that the man who could make two blades of grass where one grew before was better than all the politicians.

There was no need for Wilson to deal with the falling of the Tories.

All he did was to hold up the prospect of a bright and brave and better new world.

The Great Gamble

Mr. Khrushchev's Bitter Harvest

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

IT is just 10 years since Mr. Khrushchev delivered the great speech in which he admitted to the Russians and the world that everything that had officially been said about Soviet agriculture since 1930 had been a pack of lies. The food position was disastrous. There were still nine million fewer cattle than there had been on the eve of collectivization in 1928, although there were millions more mouths to feed, and in spite of the fact that Russia had managed to annex large areas of Poland, Finland and Rumania, to say nothing of the Baltic states.

He put himself forward as the man who was going to transform the food position and he went about things as though he meant what he said. During the past 10 years he has spent more energy and ingenuity on this one business of trying to induce a discontented and restless peasantry to produce more food within the framework of the detested collective system than many men spend on all the activities of a lifetime.

Nineteen-sixty-three is thus, for him, an unhappy anniversary. He has had to import 6,500,000 tons of wheat from Canada and 1,600,000 tons from Australia. He is negotiating for 2,750,000 tons from the United States. He is reducing promised exports to Europe (he is buying from Europe instead). He has to stand by and watch Hungary (once the great European exporter of grain), Poland, Czechoslovakia and East Germany importing basic foodstuffs from the capitalist West.

He has had bad luck with the weather. Last winter was a killer, destroying much of the autumn-sown wheat and making the spring sowing late. This summer has been a disaster. As a rule, if there is drought in the Ukraine there will be more favorable weather in Western Siberia—and vice-versa; but this summer the fields have been burning up from Kharkov to Tselinograd.

The greatest of all Mr. Khrushchev's gambles was the plowing up of the Virgin Lands of Western Siberia, 30,000,000 acres of unused land, larger than the whole cultivated area of Britain, France and Spain combined.

These lands are still called virgin, but in fact they ceased to be anything of the kind in 1934-5. Then Mr. Khrushchev said that people had warned him that he would be creating a dustbowl. He retorted that this was an error; in any case, if, in every five-year period there was one bumper harvest to set against two failures and two different ones, the operation would be justified.

He was lucky at first: stored-up fertility did the trick and gave him three splendid harvests in a row. But 1958 was the last good harvest, and this summer (not for the first time) the fractured topsoil of that vast, unrigged area has been on the move. For days on end motor vehicles have had to drive with headlights through the dust storms. Canadian and American experts are being consulted about soil-conservation techniques. The harvest has been a failure, and it has coincided with failure in the Ukraine and in East Europe generally.

But it is not all due to bad weather. Once again, Poland has done better than any other East European country and once again Poland owes her comparative success to the fact that some years ago she, alone among the satellites, abandoned the attempt to collectivize her peasants.

Mr. Khrushchev has been putting the blame on inefficiency, on the misuse of machinery, above all on the lack of fertilizers—and the scandalous waste of what fertilizers there are. But the peasants, except in the richest pockets of land, have no real inducement to learn to use fertilizers or machinery—or to do anything at all but grow enough food for their immediate use or for local sale.

It is not that the Soviet Union is starving. There is plenty of grain in the state reserves. The present scarcity of bread and flour is government-induced. It is intended to stop the people hoarding flour in the towns and feeding bread to livestock in the country. It is a precaution against another bad harvest in 1964. It is a shock measure to bring home the gravity of the situation.

There is almost certainly enough bread grain in the country to feed the population. The real trouble is that there is not enough grain of all kinds to feed the livestock—and the Soviet Union is clearly working up to another spell of severe shortages of meat and other animal products, including butter and milk—an unhappy commentary on Mr. Khrushchev's boasting about catching up with and surpassing the Americans.

Order in the House

Our Readers' Views

WE HEAR on the radio this noon that the business of the Parliament of Canada is being held up by elected members of a group which split off from their own political party; after being elected in good faith by people hoping for a stable government.

The voters of Canada are fed up with the childish actions of members of the House of Commons, and the namby-pamby conduct of the leaders.

Are there no laws in Canada regarding the conduct of members of the sitting of the House? If so, why are they not enforced? If people act in a disorderly manner on the street, they are arrested and punished; how much more should this be the case when elected to conduct the business of a large country such as Canada (and who have just handed themselves a very large increase in salary) prevent the work of the government of the country being done. Are we going to have to have police in the House of Commons to keep order?

It is a strange thing that our free government are themselves throwing away the freedom of our country. How the rest of the world must be laughing at Canada!

I suggest that we have a national day of prayer for our country and our government.

Dogs and Children

Reading the article in your paper recently about the man who received a jail sentence for leaving his dog in the car for two hours, I wonder how many people might share my thoughts about this. It brings to my mind how much more alert the SPCA workers are, and the law, in dealing with the care of animals, than the welfare workers are in dealing with the care of children. Any day one can see children left in cars unattended, locked in, while parents are indulging in pleasures where children cannot go. It might almost seem that a tragedy has to take place before protection can be had for some unlucky children. How many complaints have to go in about children before something is done?

I am wondering if the SPCA workers should change places with some of our welfare workers.

Another good topic would be in getting the answer as to why people living on social welfare are allowed to have a car, using the money that should go for food for the children, for gas and oil, etc.

I do not think Queenie is enjoying her retirement. It is too early at 12 years. When I came to this country in 1933, I worked on a farm in Brandon, Manitoba, and they gave me a team to work. One was 28 (Polly), the other was 25 years (Dan). After harrowing all day, I guess I was more tired than they were. Queenie will miss her walks about our beautiful park and she needs the exercise.

Medicare

Concerning an item entitled "Doctors Ready Head NDP Won," doesn't it occur to those doctors that in a long run they would be the ones that would benefit from such a medical plan? Maybe not financially but they would gain something more precious and dear—like being with their families more, more sleep, a peace of mind or in their struggle for financial security. Don't these things count any more?

You and I know that capitalism is better than feudalism but socialism is coming. It has to come. The world has too many people in it for one just to think of one's self. We have to think of others in order to survive now-a-days.

Good Taste

Upon visiting some of the new and older apartments in Victoria I realize the conglomeration of colors and textures used in the foyers of such buildings. The carpeting is in various shades, one wall might be papered in another color, while the other walls are treated in a still different way and color. Instead of the furniture carrying out one of the different shades. When a lot of money is being spent it would be better to consult an interior decorator, or someone who understands such work so as to have a harmonious display of good taste.

"VISITOR."

U.S. Anthem

I have always loved Victoria for its beautiful city and gracious citizens.

However, at the Arena on Sept. 26 for the Toronto-Portland hockey game they did not play the United States national anthem.

Since there were many people at the game from Portland and it seems to be a common courtesy to play both songs when both countries are represented, I hope that in the future this will be corrected.

Israel's Aid Spikes Arab Guns

By PHIL NEWSOM

Israel, encircled by hostile Arab states, is in turn encircling the besiegers.

This turn-about is the result of a remarkably effective program of technical assistance to underdeveloped nations which from a modest start in 1956 now operates in Africa, Asia, the Mediterranean basin and even in Latin America.

It has cut deeply into UAR President Gamal Abdel Nasser's influence south of the Sahara and has aroused the ire of both Cairo and Moscow.

Strangely, it has had comparatively little publicity.

A meeting of 31 independent African states in Addis Ababa last June provided evidence of the effectiveness of the Israeli program.

At such meetings in the past it has been the custom of the Moslem bloc led by Nasser to introduce a resolution attacking Israel as a "tool of the imperialists" seeking to infiltrate Africa.

But at the June meeting were 24 African nations which have received Israeli assistance, and Nasser, certain his resolution would be defeated, did not even offer it.

Despite the broad scope of the Israeli program, it operates at remarkably low cost. This year the figure will be about $7,000,000. It is noteworthy that many of the African nations consider the Israeli aid more valuable to their particular needs than that coming from larger, richer nations at vastly higher cost.

Essentially, the program concentrates on agriculture and water resources, formation of youth groups and public and private enterprises in which the Israelis have had the greatest experience.

The most characteristic aid is carried out by young Israelis from the agricultural collectives (Kibbutz) and agricultural co-operatives (Moshav). In Africa, these young instructors form units of soldier-farmers which Israel has found so effective in developing both its own agriculture and defence.

Such units have been formed in Ghana, Senegal, Togo and elsewhere. Israeli instructors are also to be found in the imperial college of Ethiopia, on the cotton plantations of Tanganyika, at the head of the naval school of Ghana, in the health service of Liberia.

In turn, Africa is sending students to Israel to take courses in agriculture, youth training, professional training, administration and social work, collectivism and trade unionism.

Recently, Congolese army chief Gen. Joseph Mobutu and a selected group of his troops completed their paratroop training in Israel and then returned home to be deployed for quick pacification of trouble areas. Some African states also are organizing women's corps on the Israeli model.

The secret of Israel's success is the fact that it is too small to be considered as having imperialistic ambitions and enjoys the trust not given to larger nations.

Further, it has asked nothing in return except an occasional share of the profit in companies jointly owned with independent African states such as Ghana.

Coolness Under Fire

MacEachen Becomes Liberal Strongman

By ROBERT RICE from Ottawa

In the heat of politics and industrial conflict, Allan J. MacEachen is gaining stature as a strongman in the Liberal cabinet.

The 42-year-old minister of labor is impressing MPs and cabinet colleagues with his poise under fire and his coolness in handling explosive issues.

He was re-elected in 1957 but lost his seat by a scant 16 votes when the Conservatives swept the country in 1958.

Mr. Pearson, then leader of the opposition, kept Mr. MacEachen in Ottawa as his special assistant. During this period, the professor-politician mastered the rules and procedure of Parliament, and hammered out a speech-writing style of hard facts and few frills.

He won back his Nova Scotia seat in 1962 and this year was given the labor portfolio in the first Pearson Liberal cabinet. This assignment included a seat on the special cabinet committee on economic growth and employment, the "inner cabinet" of Mr. Pearson.

One of his first decisions was to drop around to the Ottawa headquarters of the Canadian Labor Congress. By going to see labor, instead of waiting for labor to come to him, the new minister quickly created a direct rapport with Canada's top union men.

Ottawa observers give full credit to Mr. MacEachen for persuading the CLC to co-operate with the government in tackling the prickly and unprecedented trusteeship of marine unions. Because of the CLC's outright opposition to government trusteeship, this feat was viewed as a major accomplishment.

ness in handling explosive issues.

The bachelor minister is now embroiled in two of Canada's hottest problems: the St. Lawrence River longshoremen's strike and the controversial move by the government into waterfront trade unions to clear up corruption and lawlessness.

His whole background and training seem to have led him to his present position.

Son of a Cape Breton coal miner, he is an economist, sociologist, confidant of Prime Minister Pearson, an expert for his party on parliamentary rules and a key member of the Liberals' so-called inner cabinet.

At 25, he was professor of economics at St. Francis Xavier, then head of the university's department of social sciences. During this period he studied industrial relations and economics at the University of Chicago.

At 30, Mr. MacEachen was

Walkout Protests Apartheid

ROME (UPI) — Representatives of 24 airlines from Africa, Asia, Europe, the Middle East, Pakistan and a 52-airline conference to protest South African and Portuguese human rights policies. They returned about a half hour later, satisfied that they had made their point but unsuccessful in a bid to prevent the election of South African airlines officials to committee posts within the International Air Transport Association (IATA).

The walkout was organized by Chief O. I. Dafe, general manager of Nigerian Airlines and leader of a week-long campaign at IATA's 19th annual general meeting to prevent the South African and Portuguese either voting or sitting on IATA committees.

When the session ended South Africans had been elected to two routine committees but no Portuguese were nominated.

"I think we've accomplished what we set out to do," Dafe said. "We wanted to call attention to South Africa's heinous apartheid policy and to Portugal's... in Angola."

Veteran members of IATA, whose constitution specifies that it is non-political, angrily denounced the Dafe bloc's actions in informal talks with newsmen.

Canada Sells Butter

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has sold about 5,500,000 pounds of butter to the United Kingdom in the first major export sale since 1955, informants said Thursday.

The consignment is to be delivered before Nov. 15, posing the question of the St. Lawrence longshoremen's strike.

U.S. Seizes Huge Load Of Heroin

LAREDO, Tex. (UPI) — U.S. customs agents Thursday seized a 66-pound shipment of pure heroin, worth about $33,000,000 to underworld narcotics peddlars, in a car coming across the border from Mexico.

A Montreal gambler and his wife were arrested.

A routine car check uncovered the biggest haul of illegal drugs ever seized at a Mexican-U.S. border.

SALESMAN, GAMBLER
Dapper Joseph Michel Caron, 33, who said he was a "salesman and gambler," and his attractive brunette wife, Marie Ida, 30, were charged with smuggling heroin into the U.S. and were held on $25,000 bond each.

"It is pure heroin," a customs official said. "When cut (with milk sugar), this would make about 450 pounds of heroin" ready for sale in underworld markets.

U.S. Willing to Sell Other Surplus Goods

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy is willing to sell to Russia such surplus commodities as feed grains, corn, cotton, tobacco and dairy products as well as wheat, Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges, announced Thursday.

Hodges said the sale of other commodities would depend on whether the Soviet Union requested them and if the same sale conditions set up for the multi-million dollar wheat purchase were met.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield told newsmen he "wouldn't be surprised" if such further transactions already were "in the works."

Japan Plans Ships Hinged in Middle

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japan's shipbuilding industry is working with models toward a new era in maritime construction featuring ships hinged in the middle.

The industry already has to its credit the construction of the world's largest tanker and the completion of several highly automated ships.

With the end of the Second World War, the maritime industry found itself at the beginning of the era of giant ships, which grew larger as the shipbuilding countries of the world joined in a race for orders.

MAJOR PROBLEM

As more monster ships appeared on the drawing boards, designers and engineers found themselves confronted with a major problem: How to construct a hull strong enough to withstand the pressure of stormy seas.

The designers found numerous cases of damage caused to the hulls of ships because they were not strong enough to stand stresses which are in almost direct proportion to the length of the hull.

Decks buckled, hulls cracked and in some cases the ships broke in half.

HINGING ANSWER

Experts decided the best way to stop ships cracking at mid-ship was to hinge the vessel at that point with pins. Experiments with models of hinged ships have been carried out at the Yokohama National University.

The idea is based on the theory that by hinging the fore and aft sections of the ship, the separate parts will have independent pitching movements, thereby greatly reducing the resistance of the hull to the motion of the waves.

The fore and aft sections of a pin-joint ship could be built separately and hinged after launching, making it possible to reduce the length of construction berths by one half. Since the joining operation could be carried out at sea, no additional drydock facilities would be needed.

In the event of a section of the ship being damaged, further saving could be effected by immediately replacing the damaged half, enabling the ship to operate again after only a brief interruption.

U.S. Wheat Order Hinted in Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI)—The government yesterday hinted to the people for the first time that critical national grain shortages may be eased further by buying U.S. wheat in addition to already massive orders from Canada and Australia.

The government newspaper, Izvestia, gave front page indication of a Soviet order for U.S. wheat in the last paragraph of a dispatch from Washington on President Kennedy's news conference.

Foe of Nuclear Testing Wins Second Nobel Prize

OSLO—Dr. Linus C. Pauling, noted biochemist whose opposition to nuclear tests has made him a controversial figure in the U.S., yesterday was awarded the 1962 Nobel peace prize.

The award made Pauling the first man in the 62-year history of the Nobel prizes to be honored twice. He won the Nobel prize for chemistry in 1954.

While the committee did not disclose why it named Pauling—over such other reported candidates as President Kennedy and Soviet Prime Minister Khrushchev—it generally was believed he was honored for his efforts to outlaw nuclear testing.

SOUTHAMPTON, England—Cuban-born Thomas Moreno, 46, stowaway on the Dutch liner Willem Ruys, wonders if he'll spend the rest of his life at sea. Moreno was deported to Cuba from the U.S. Cuba clapped him in jail as a U.S. spy. He escaped, stowing away in a Panama-bound ship. From there he boarded the Willem Ruys. Authorities wouldn't let him disembark at Miami and New York and now England won't have him.

CANTON, N.C.—"Even my wife can't spell my name." Eleutherius D. Appalashunas-tappalush told the officer Wednesday as he paid a $1 parking fine as Ed D. Stapp.

BONN—The West German government may seek authorization to castrate convicted sex criminals, Justice Minister Ewald Bucher said.

Bucher said there were 4,538 convictions in West Germany for sexual attacks on children in 1961.

HALIFAX, N.S.—The 25th Nova Scotia legislature will have a first-two brothers. Harley Spencer, member in the last house for Lunenburg West, will be joined by his brother, Norman, who won Hants West in Tuesday's provincial election.

VANCOUVER—Russell Lewman, 40, a paraplegic who admitted renting pornographic movies, was given a one-month jail term in court Thursday.

HAMILTON—A Jerseyville woman is in hospital after a collision caused by a wasp. Mrs. Lela Smith, 24, was admitted to hospital with a fractured jaw, facial and leg cuts. Edward Butterworth, driver of the other car, said he lost control when a wasp stung his hand.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.—Newfoundland premier Joseph

THOMAS MORENO ... forever?

Smallwood has welcomed Prime Minister Pearson's announcement that nuclear warheads will be stored by the U.S. in the island province. Smallwood said his province is happy to collaborate with Ottawa and "our friends in the United States."

NEW YORK—A federal judge has ordered a Russian couple accused of spying to stand trial Nov. 4, rejecting their plea of diplomatic immunity. Judge Leo F. Bayliff refused to dismiss the indictment against Ivan D. Egorov, 41, and his wife Aleksandra, 39, saying that Egorov's duties with the UN secretariat were entirely non-diplomatic. The Egorovs were arrested in New York by FBI agents July 2.

POOLE, England—Guns at the Nov. 16 wedding of bride-lovers Jane Allen and Clifford MacDonald have been asked to bring birdseed instead of confetti so birds can share their wedding breakfast.

Radio Club to Meet
Victoria Short Wave Club will meet at Orange Hall, 725 Courtney Street at 8 p.m. today for a brief business meeting followed by a social.

she never loved him. Mrs. Valachi—whose marriage has been described as a union of underworld convenience to cement gangland hierarchy families—says he was always chasing other women and "took off" with one of them five years ago.

WEST MEON, England—The ashes of Gay Burgess, turn-of-century British diplomat, have been buried in an English country churchyard. Only West Meon's rector, Rev. John Hurst, and three of Burgess' relatives were at the ceremony. Burgess defected from the foreign office with Donald MacLean in 1951 and died in Moscow six weeks ago.

VANCOUVER—The student council at UBC Thursday withdrew from public showing a student-made feature movie, "The Bitter Ash." The movie, produced, directed and written by UBC student Larry Read on a $5,000 budget with free acting, will not be shown again until provincial censor Ray McDonald has seen it.

VANCOUVER—Tom Albury, former mayor of Vancouver, said Wednesday he is seriously considering running as alderman candidate in the December civic election here.

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy and Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko met late yesterday in an atmosphere of improved U.S.-Soviet relations helped further by the president's approval of American wheat sales to Russia.

Pacific
Cable Joined

HONOLULU (AP)—The Commonwealth Pacific cable—an 8,700-mile communications system between Canada and Australia—was completed late Wednesday beneath the Pacific a few miles off the Hawaiian island of Oahu.

The splicing completed part of a proposed global communications system that will join the nations of the Commonwealth.

The cable stretches from Vancouver to Sydney, Australia, via Hawaii, Suva and New Zealand. The hookup is set to go into operation by Dec. 2. A similar hookup between Britain and Canada has been in operation since December, 1961.

It will provide telephone service, an international telex exchange, teleprinter channels, international telegram service and picture photo transmission.

U.K. Lifts
Gagarin
Landing Ban

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain yesterday withdrew its refusal to allow a Soviet airliner carrying Russian astronaut Yuri Gagarin to land at Prestwick Airport, Scotland.

Earlier, a foreign ministry spokesman said the refusal was based on lack of progress in establishing reciprocity in civil aviation transit rights with Russia.

The turbo-prop airliner was reported Wednesday to have landed with mechanical trouble at Riga, Latvia.

Gagarin was reported on his way to Cuba to meet Soviet woman cosmonaut Valentina Tereshkova. The two were to go to a Mexican aeronautical congress.

Mother Sent To Hospital

Mrs. Nina Diane Morley, Burnaby mother charged with murdering her three-month-old baby earlier this week, has been found mentally ill and sent to the provincial mental hospital at Esquimalt.

The transfer was authorized by a cabinet order Thursday.

It said she will remain there until completely or partly recovered or until further order of the cabinet.

METEOR makes it big for '64big beautiful sedans!

Whatever your taste or budget—there's a big beautiful Meteor Sedan just right for you. If you want to make it big in luxury, choose the 2-door or 4-door Custom models. If you want to make it big in extra value you'll like the 2-door or 4-door Meteor models. All give you Meteor's beautifully distinctive big-car styling along with the optional rear window that goes up and down.

big value-packed wagons!

Here is all the style of an expensive sedan plus interior luxury that is quite new in station wagon design. But when you want to be practical, Meteor's extra length and width really pay off. A quick one handed operation folds the rear seat into the floor and you have an enormous 99.3 cubic feet of cargo space behind you. Fill it to the brim with whatever you like. Meteor's strengthened frame and rubber mounted body are designed to take the heaviest load with ease. Choose from the Custom Wagon or the Meteor Wagon in either 6 or 9 passenger models.

That optional Breezeway Rear Window goes down as well as the side windows so just about the only glass around you is the windshield. This open air feeling of bigness is matched by Meteor's extra length and width to give you lots of room inside. Supple vinyls and fashion-plate fabrics cover deep foam-padded seats front and rear. Thoughtful conveniences include padded arm-rest and visors, pile carpeting, crank-operated side vent windows and a specially cowled instrument panel that prevents glare. In luxury, and all the other things that mean extra value in a low-priced car, this Meteor Custom hardtop makes it big for '64.

a big fun-loving convertible!

People who like convertibles often drive a hundred miles just for the sheer fun of it. If you're this kind of person—the big Meteor Custom Convertible is for you. Its leather-grained vinyl upholstery even smells of performance. Choose the big 390 cubic-inch V-8—pair it off with a slick "four on the floor" transmission. Put the roof down and just nudge the accelerator and you're as fancy free as a summer breeze. And here's a surprise, this fun-loving convertible is priced with the lowest in its class.

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

LOS ANGELES—Before the first game, Walter Alston told the Dodgers: "Don't let the pin-stripes scare you, because the Mets wear them." His listeners chuckled. They're still laughing.

Perhaps never since 1905 when every game was a shutout—three by Christy Mathewson, one by Irvan McGinnity, and one by Chief Bender—has the pitching fraternity dominated a competition for the baseball championship of the globe the way the men in the middle took over the 80th world series.

Surely never since 1914 has a betting favorite with an established claim to greatness given such a sorry account of itself. Indeed—as Tommy Holmes remarked when life was ebbing fast away for the pin-striped lords of creation—the parallels are striking between the dismantling of Connie Mack's mighty team of 49 years ago and the pillage of Ralph Houk's 1963 wonders.

The "miracle" Braves of 1914, last in the National League in mid-July and first in October, were a team composed of three pitchers with friends. Pitchers named Dick Rudolph, Bill James, and George Tyler. Read ditto for the Dodgers of 1963, but make the names Sandy Koufax, Johnny Podres, and Don Drysdale.

The pennant won by the Philadelphia Athletics in 1914 was their fourth in five years. Finest team of their time beyond any dispute, they had the world championship in three of those years. Eddie Collins, Jack Barry, Home Run Baker, and Stuffy McInnis made up Connie's "$100,000 infield," a team regarded as a compliment before money went out of style. His pitchers were incomparable—Eddie Plank, Chief Bender, Bullet Joe Bush, Bob Shawkey, Jack Coombs.

Everybody knows about the Yankees and their 13 pennants in the last 15 years.

Some Vague Silhouettes

Outside the pitching staff, the Braves were nothing much—a kid shortstop named Rabbit Maranville, a grouchy old second baseman named Johnny Evers, a 243 hitter behind the plate named Hank Gowdy, and some vague silhouettes.

Boston's very presence in the world series was dismissed as an accident. The Athletics were overwhelming favorites to start with, and you could name your own price when the Braves' third baseman broke a leg on the eve of the series. He was a qualified professional with a phony name, Red Smith.

This year the Dodgers' third baseman, Ken McMullen came up gimpy and couldn't play in the series.

So those Braves creamed the Athletics in four straight. So those Dodgers clobbered the Yankees four straight. In 1914 Rudolph and James won two games each, with Tyler holding the enemy for 10 innings in one 12-inning struggle. In 1963, Koufax won two games, Podres and Drysdale one each.

Those great Athletics batted .172. These majestic Yankees batted .171. The Athletics made 22 hits in four games, a world series record for ladylike deportment. The Yankees made 22 hits—hey, who wrote this script, anyhow?

Rudolph pitched a five-hitter and a seven-hitter. James had a two-hit shutout and allowed no hits after relieving Tyler in the 12-inning match. Koufax pitched two six-hitters, Podres and Ron Ferraroli a seven-hitter, and Drysdale a three-hit shutout.

In both cases the games were pretty close with a good deal of suspense. In both cases the losers were horrible.

Short Series, Unsweetened

Connie Mack always attributed the collapse of his team to unrest caused by the upstart Federal League. Some of his players, notably Bender and Plank, had already signed Federal League contracts for 1915 and those who weren't sought by the new organization were unhappy about it.

Owing the Los Angeles pitchers the great credit they deserve, it is still impossible to explain the pitiful playing of the Yankees, unless they were neck-deep in the mire of self-esteem.

The series was short but not sweet—except in Los Angeles eyes—because the losers lost so crummiy. The Dodgers aren't a hitting team and they didn't hit a great deal. They're only fair in the field, and they made no extraordinary defensive plays. Their pitchers didn't need any.

A witness, never a Yankee fan, found it almost impossible to believe he was watching the Yankees in a world series.

Many hearts, pronounced one, are bleeding today for Walter O'Malley, the Dodgers' genial proprietor, because his employees wrapped it up in four games. Practically all the money from a four-game series goes to the players and the owner may not break even.

"You think Walter would care?" O'Malley's press agent, Arthur Patterson, said after the second game. "If we should beat the Yankees four straight, can you imagine what business we'd do in this town next year?"

Then an has, gets.

THE Arnold PALMER METHOD

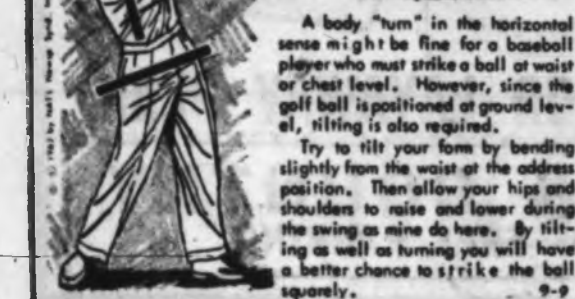

TILTING THE SWING

Body movement during the golf swing is often described as a "turn." This description is not entirely accurate since the word "turn" implies that the hips and shoulders move strictly on a horizontal plane. Actually, the so-called "body turn" also involves a considerable amount of "tilt."

This tilting is shown in the accompanying illustrations. Note how my right shoulder and hip raise on the backswing and how my left shoulder and hip raise on the through swing.

A body "turn" in the horizontal sense might be fine for a baseball player who must strike a ball at waist or chest level. However, since the golf ball is positioned at ground level, tilting is also required.

Try to tilt your form by bending slightly from the waist at the address position. Then allow your hips and shoulders to raise and lower during the swing as mine do here. By tilting as well as turning you will have a better chance to strike the ball squarely.

DETROIT—Gordie Howe closed in on hockey's most illustrious record here last night in one of the most dramatic performances of his 17 brilliant seasons in the National Hockey League.

Playing before the largest opening-night crowd in Detroit history, Howe opened season No. 18 with two first-period goals in a 5-3 victory over Chicago Black Hawks, leaving him just two goals shy of Maurice Richard's career record of 544 goals.

He did it in classic fashion.

TROPHY TIME

There were 12,446 fans crammed into the Olympia, partly to see the Red Wings open but mainly to see Howe presented with the Hart Trophy as the league's most valuable player last season and the Ross Trophy as the league's scoring champion.

Howe has won both trophies six times, and the way he started out last night indicates he could well make it seven.

The man who has played in more NHL games (1,121), collected more assists (672) and more points (1,214) than any other player in history, scored on the first shot he took last night.

It came at 5:40, an unassisted effort from 40 feet out with Chicago two men short and Detroit one. He was back again for another power play goal at 8:21 on a pass from Bill Gadsby.

FANS BOAR

With a start like that, the crowd was in constant uproar, hoping against hope that Howe would do the seemingly impossible and get the five goals he needed for the record in one game. And at that, collected more assists (672) and more points (1,214) than any other player in history, scored on the first shot he took last night.

Howe's performance stole the thunder from a good hockey game as Detroit built up a 4-1 lead on goals by Larry Jeffrey and Alex Faulkner, then spiked a Chicago rally with an open-net goal by Alex Delvecchio with six seconds remaining.

Stan Mikita, Bobby Hull and Al McDonald scored for the Hawks.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Hunting season opens Saturday for ducks and coots, all geese, Wilson's snipe, pheasants and quail. Already fair game on Vancouver Island are bear, buck deer, elk, grouse, and pigeons.

This means that all game, except brant, will be open for shooting this weekend, but pigeon season closes Sunday night. Outlook for waterfowl shooting is pretty good. There may be some stormy weekend weather to keep the ducks down and from all parts of the island come reports of fair numbers of ducks and geese in their migratory flights.

This is the big weekend for Cowichan Bay and there are plenty of coho around for that area's three-day Thanksgiving coho derby.

The Cowichan Bay long bucktail flies, trolled very quickly behind a pearl spinner, have been doing the trick. According to Herman Mayes, who seems to catch more coho and spend more time on the water than anyone else in that area, the faster you troll the better.

We pulled alongside him last week just off Lambourn. He had three coho in the boat then. When he took off we thought he had given up fishing and was heading back to Cowichan Bay.

He left our boat far behind. But, he was fishing and by the time he reached the Bay he had another coho. We had none.

"Travel fast," he advised later. We did and we hit coho almost immediately.

Idea is to speed about the fishing area until you see jumpers. Then cut the speed down to a very fast bucktailing speed and seek out those jumpers. We found them along the Skinner Bluffs, off Separation Point and halfway between Cherry Point and Wilcuma.

The boundary line has been lifted at Cowichan Bay.

There are still fish to be caught in the Sanke to Brocton Ledge waters. Max Rudgey of Sanke Bay Resort reports good coho fishing off Otter Point for coho in the early morning. Gilmetters at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait had three days of getting this week, one extra than last week, and were catching five coho for one chum or pink. The coho have been all sizes and show no schooling pattern.

San Juan Bay at Port Renfrew has been giving up a few big coho.

Saanich Inlet is providing some fair fishing. Finlayson Arm has been giving up springs up to 12 pounds. Mill Bay has been good for bucktailing for coho at times and between Willis Point and Senanus Island has been fair.

There are still plenty of coho around Qualicum, but they have been hard to catch. At Campbell River anglers have been getting good coho fishing at the mouth of the river.

Now is the time to start tramping the rivers again. Cutthroat trout fishing, especially at the estuaries is worthwhile at almost any river. The lakes are starting to pick up and hunters who combine hunting with wilderness lake fishing have been having lots of fun.

Somenos, Cowichan, Nanaimo, Buttle and Upper Campbell Lakes are all reported good. Cutthroat fishing has been good off the beach shores near the mouths of the Big and Little Qualicum Rivers, Englishman River and Nile Creek.

A nationwide competition is again being launched to find a typical "Outdoors Girl of Canada."

Winner will be selected from a group of finalists at the 1964 National Sportsman's Show in Toronto, March 13 to 21. Any Canadian girl, with the exception of professional models and professional athletes, is eligible to enter providing she participates in some outdoor sport or recreation. Nominations, however, must be submitted by a fish, game or conservation club, yacht club, sailing club, ski club or any other type of outdoor recreational club, anywhere in Canada.

Surgery for Certain On Mickey's Left Knee

New York Yankees announced Mantle's imminent operation Thursday after manager Ralph Houk had conferred with co-owner Dan Topping and general manager Roy Hamer.

Dr. Sidney Gaynor, club physician, will operate on Mantle for the removal of an outside cartilage of the left knee which was torn when he ran into a fence in Baltimore, June 5. He also suffered a broken bone in his left foot.

CASEY STENGEL ... no indication

If He Wants It

Mets' Job Still for Casey

NEW YORK (AP)—George Weiss said he was operating on the basis that Casey Stengel will manage New York Mets again in 1964, as he announced Thursday the hiring of coaches Mel Harder and Wes Westrum and the firing of Solly Hemus and Ernie White.

"I assume Casey will be back," said Weiss. "If he wanted to leave he would say so. I expect him back. He has not indicated to me that he will not be on the job again."

Weiss announced the coaching changes at a news conference after he had told reporters that the Mets picked up infielder Billy Haas and pitcher Jack Fisher for $20,000 each in the "Help the Mets and Colts" project. Haas came from Los Angeles Dodgers, Fisher from San Francisco.

Ryder Cup Starts Today

British 'Babies' Put on Line Against Palmer, Johnny Pott

ATLANTA (AP)—The British sprang a surprise and named the two "babies" of their team—Brian Huggett and George Will—to face Arnold Palmer and Johnny Pott in the opening four-man match today in the Ryder Cup golf matches.

Huggett, a stocky, five-foot-six Welshman, and Will, a Scotsman, both are 26. Neither has ever played in a Ryder Cup match before.

John Falson, the wily, grey-haired Scotsman who leads the invading British professionals, acknowledged Thursday that he had a suspicion that Palmer would nominate himself in the first match and his No. 1 pairing was contrived.

"This is not a concession of a point at all," Falson said. "I sincerely think the babies have a good chance of winning. They had a 67 in practice. They will be known with all to win and nothing to lose."

Palmer, the playing U.S. captain, missed reasoning with inexperience in his line-up for the first four of eight matches scheduled on opening day. Four other matches will be played in the afternoon, with the teams to be announced after the morning 18-hole contests. In four-some play, the two-team members hit alternate shots.

PLAY ON WEEKEND

Eight best-ball team matches, with each player hitting his own ball, will follow Saturday with 16 individual contests Sunday.

Termed "invincible if right" by Palmer, the Americans are rated 1-to-1 favorites to take the gold trophy they have won 11 of 14 times and never lost in their own country.

Both captains conceded that perhaps the top opening match was the fourth on the schedule—pitting Julius Berman, the reigning U.S. Open champion, and Tony Lema, fourth leading money-winner, against Neil Palmer also expressed respect for Dave Thomas, the powerful 23-pound Welshman, and Harry Weetman, a tough competitor who is a 13-year Ryder Cup veteran. "They both knock the ball a mile," Arnold said. Their opponents will be Finsterwald and Littler.

Soccer Roundup

United's Production Can't Get Worse

Victoria United's tour of the Pacific Coast Soccer League to date has been strictly starvation rations as far as scoring is concerned, but Wally Milligan feels that could end in tomorrow's game against Firefighters at Royal Athletic Park.

"It almost has to, doesn't it?" he said last night. "We can't get much worse."

United's record is two goals in three games, and only through some fine defence and the work of goalie Barry Sadler has the club been fortunate enough to come up with two draws.

"The defence has been doing all the work," Milligan admitted. "Our forwards haven't been outplayed—hell, we've had more than our share of the play in all three games—but there's been no finish around the net."

"But we had a good practice tonight and I think that will change against Firefighters."

United's lineup will be essentially the same one that played to a scoreless draw with Seattle Hungarians in the club's last start.

It will be Sadler in goal, Ron Jenkins and Jim Hawthorne at fullback, and George Wright, Bobby Marx and Ollie Owens on the half line. Up front it will be Henry Vanderhorst and Russ Ball on the wings, with Tony Bourbyrn and George Paul flanking centre forward Bill Hamilton. Game time is 2 p.m.

United's home appearance has forced a schedule shuffle in the Victoria and District Soccer League, which had originally planned a first division game tomorrow at Royal Athletic Park.

Instead, there will be a double-header Sunday at Heywood Park, when Wests play Canadian Scottish at 1 p.m. and Esquimalt meets Price and Smith at 2:45.

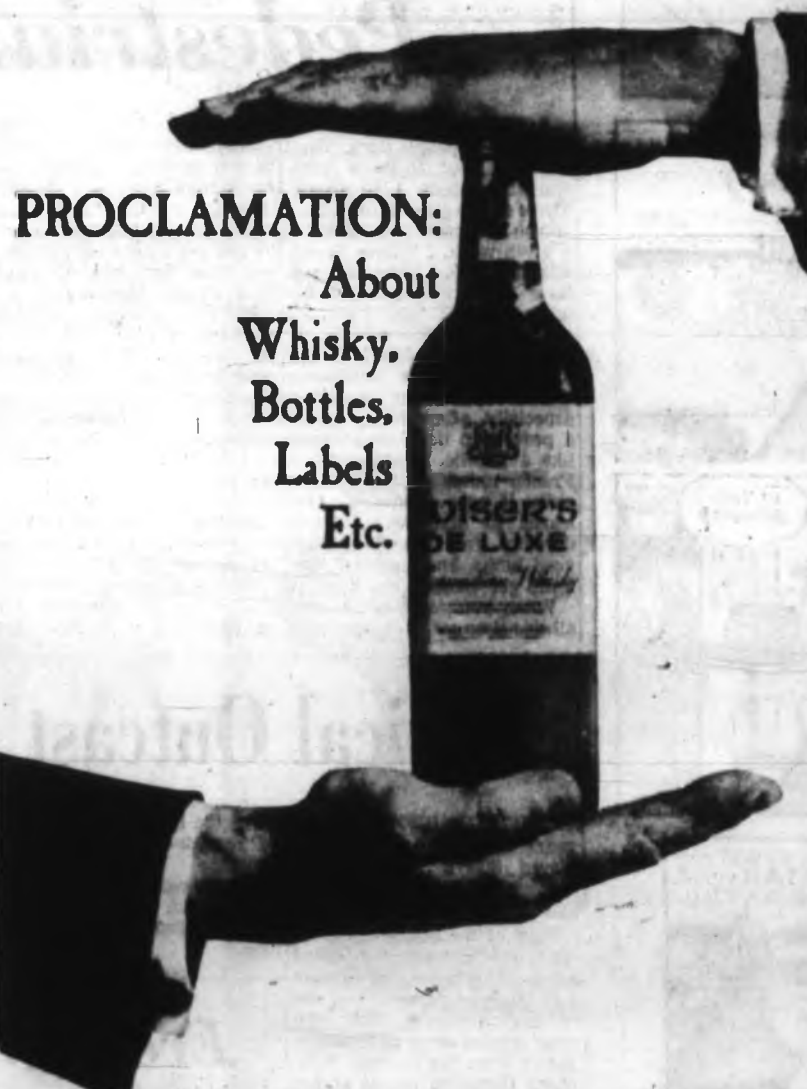

Eddys take on Kichers at Topaz Park and Gorge meets Brodies at Central Park in other first division games at 2 p.m. There's also a switch in parks

In Sunday's second division play, with Kichers meeting Oak Bay at Reynolds Park instead of Carnarvon Park as originally scheduled.

Dunlops play Wanderers at Beacon Hill Park, Navy meets Gorge at HMCS Naden, and Kings meet Victoria University at Gordon Head.

Tonight is "game of the week" night in the Inter-High School Soccer League, with Esquimalt facing Oak Bay at 7:30 p.m. at Royal Athletic Park.

In day games at 3:45, Claremont plays at Victoria High and Mount View visits Mt. Douglas.

PROCLAMATION:
About Whisky, Bottles, Labels Etc.

One day while we were contemplating a number of our Wiser's whiskies, in different bottles, each with brilliantly individualistic labels, we were struck by the absurdity of the whole thing. We are not really selling bottles, or labels... just good Wiser's Canadian whisky. So we decided to select just one good bottle and try it for most of our different brands. We chose our squarish bottle... attractive, popular, with Wiser's, is older than other whiskies on the board in virtually every price class. Thus if a mellow age-in-wood interests you, you will find Wiser's offers just about the best values in whisky today.

Garden Notes

The Helianthemum

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRBS

A problem spot often encountered in the garden is a position where the drainage is sharp, the soil lean and hungry gravelly or sandy loam, and the aspect hot and sun-baked. Not many plants will thrive under this set of conditions, but one which seems to actually prefer such lean fare is the sun rose or Helianthemum.

This is a small shrub forming wide, dense cushions of deep green or greyish foliage, blooming with amazing prodigality through late spring and early summer and providing a grand splash of color even though the individual blossoms last for only a single day. Helianthemums are also first rate plants for furnishing retaining walls and for cliffs and terraces in the rock garden.

These are low-growing subjects, seldom more than eight inches high and with a spread of about a foot. Planted 12 inches apart, their evergreen foliage forms dense mats suppressing weeds and making their own shade for their roots, which is probably why they are able to survive in dry sites. Closely clipped in July after the first flush of blossoms is over, they will usually give a second burst of bloom in September and build up a dense foliage cover before winter.

Plants may be purchased and set out now, and are not at all expensive, usually running less than a dollar each. Once a collection is acquired, more plants may be propagated quite easily by cuttings taken in August or September and rooted in a coldframe or even in the open garden by covering each tiny two-inch slip with a jam jar until rooted.

There is a remarkably wide range of colors and varieties to choose from—one catalogue in my possession lists 37 named varieties. A few of my favorites are Fire Dragon, with flame red blossoms; Ben Lawers, buff with an orange centre; Ben Nevis, lemon and terra cotta; Ben Dearg, coppery salmon; The Bride, a pure white; Butter and Eggs, with fully double blossoms in orange and salmon pink; and Jubilee, double yellow.

Closely related to the sun roses are the rock roses or Cistus—larger shrubs and not quite so tough and weather-resistant, needing a bit of shelter from winter winds. These have satiny, crumpled saucers of bloom lasting only a single day, like the Helianthemums. Fallen, they lie beneath the evergreen bushes like broken butterflies.

My own favorite is Cistus cyprus, growing eventually to a height of six feet, with blossoms four inches across, white with a crimson blotch in the centre. Another good one, about the same size, is C. purpureus, blooming in resy crimson with a chocolate blotch.

There are some dwarf kinds too, forming spreading bushes about two feet tall, some with attractive grey foliage. I particularly like one called Cistus "Silver Pink," although it is not too hardy and has been known to winter-kill in an exposed position. Other good dwarfs are C. crispus, with bright rose red blossoms, and C. rosmarinifolius with white blooms.

The Turbulent World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Wayne's in Spain—Just!

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—John Wayne made it to Spain in an old freighter that nearly fell apart during a 60-mile-an-hour gale. Wayne and the boat are now one of the tourist attractions off Barcelona. He is living on the ship while filming Circus World, and on a calm day the kids swim out for his autograph.

It's quite the fashion to live on a boat while making a movie or while not making a movie. When last heard from Mike Wilding had found a suitable yacht for ex-wife, Elizabeth Taylor, and Richard Burton, who may or may not be one of his successors. For Liz to loll on while Dickie toils in Night of the Iguana. Actually Liz will be on the set. The Yacht is for between takes.

Mrs. Sybil Burton has decided she will not be leaving her lovely home in New York, just because her straying mate will be going there in the spring. In fact, she is hoping he will stay into the apartment, which he paid for and where she lives with their two enchanting daughters.

A winsome photograph on a card from Jayne Mansfield in Yugoslavia. "We have another week in Dubrovnik with Dog Eat Dog." (That's a picture.) Then home to the pink palace in Hollywood to await the birth of the twins.

Two films in the making in Denmark are causing more than usual interest—a film version of Hamlet on the actual spot, and the Christine Keeler story. I can't imagine any theatre wanting to show the Christine movie.

New bridegroom Robert Gould is "baching" it at his agent Kurt Fring's home in Beverly Hills while his bride Carol Lawrence is singing in the Persian Room in New York. They will hate me for saying it, but this is not a good way to start married life, working 3,000 miles away from each other. Robert is making His and His. Question: Was this New York engagement absolutely necessary for Carol?

The chief reason why Mr. Cedric Belfrage accepted a role in the Anna Karenina film, The Pumpkin Eater, was to dispel the talk that he was ailing. Sir Cedric isn't as young as he used to be, but who is? And he is still one of the best actors.

The Kirk Douglass with their children are looking at the Jean Collins-Anthony Newley nine-room apartment in New York. Tony pays $1,150 a month for it, unfurnished. Perhaps Kirk should wait to see how his play, One Flew Over the Cuckoo Nest, makes out before taking on such a large expense. I'm sure Kirk will have a success although he often tells that before he came to Hollywood he appeared in a dozen flops. One after the other. And the best script sometimes reads better than it plays.

Question: Do film star parents really object to the nudity of their daughters on the screen or stage? I see that Robert Montgomery is supposed to dislike daughter Elizabeth's very bare back in Johnny Cool. But this father and daughter are not very close, and I can't see him objecting to something that is not his business. The same when Jane Fonda appeared in the briefest bikini in her play last season on Broadway. Jane and her father Henry Fonda are not too close either, and Henry is not a man to quibble when the role calls for a pretty girl to reveal her pretty figure. Both Jane and Elizabeth have never quite been able to forgive their fathers for divorcing their mothers to marry another woman.

Terry Moore and husband Stuart Kramer were exhausted after moving into their new home, and decided to dine out at a small restaurant. Sitting next to them was Vince Edwards, an old friend of Terry's. "Why have you never appeared on my show?" Vince asked her. "Because no one ever asked me," said Terry. He asked her.

British Drivers Astonish JOHN CROSBY

Pedestrians People!

LONDON—Pedestrians are treated like people here. What a quaint idea! In Paris pedestrians are sport. Like grouse. There's a bag limit, of course. If you kill more than three in a given week, I believe there's a small fine. After all, you have to leave some for the other guy.

In London pedestrians are protected. Like whooping cranes. It's very puzzling, especially after Paris, where a pedestrian develops reflexes like a gazelle. I can smell a French motorist three blocks away if he's downwind. One learns to take cover. Paris develops great speed of foot, good lungs, and stamina. The unfit get weeded out rapidly. When you come to London, all this changes. You approach a crosswalk; all the cars stop. The motorists smile and beckon to you to cross. When you're fresh from Paris as I am, you think it's a trick. "Fellow trying to get me out there where he can get a good shot at me," you think, and take cover well back on the sidewalk.

But they mean it. I watched a couple of other pedestrians for sitting ducks, as we're sometimes known, as they approached a crosswalk. Cars halted. All that backing and smiling. A girl stepped right on in front of them; they let her get away.

So long as you're on foot, it's great. It's only when you get behind one of these Sir Galahads in your own car that you get a little annoyed. It's an obsession with these fellows, this courtesy-to-the-pedestrian bit. They stop at all the crosswalks, looking for some pedestrian to be polite to.

It can get annoying on foot, too. The other day I got waved across several streets I had no intention of crossing. I was just standing there, minding my own business. A car pulled up. The guy had the decency to stop. Only fair to carry out your part of it. So I smiled and crossed a street I didn't want to cross.

You mustn't get the idea that the English motorist is that genteel all the time. It's only when you're on foot that you get all that consideration. When you're mounted, look out. Then his sporting blood begins to boil.

Musical Outcast Makes the Grade

TORONTO (CP)—Twelve years ago Toronto violinist Steven Staryk was definitely persona non grata in the United States. Not so now.

Then, at the height of the security crackdown in the United States, Staryk, born of Russian and Yugoslav parents, was one of the "Symphony Six" who were refused entry as "security risks" when the Toronto Symphony Orchestra played at Detroit in 1951.

Now, recognized as one of the foremost orchestral violinists in the world, he has crossed the border to take up his post as concertmaster to the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. The only other such position rated higher on the continent is perhaps that of concertmaster at Cleveland. Staryk still does not know why he was barred—he was only 20 years old at the time of the incident. He protested then that he was not even an adult but he and the other five musicians still lost their jobs. Even Lester Pearson, then Canada's external affairs minister, tried in vain to get the U.S. to change its mind.

But the humiliation may well be regarded as a blessing in disguise. After leaving the TSO Staryk worked with the CBC concert orchestra before going to Europe.

By 1956 he was acclaimed as the youngest musician ever to hold the dual role of concertmaster and soloist with a major symphony orchestra, the Royal Philharmonic. He was 24 when the late Sir Thomas Beecham approached him to lead his orchestra.

Four years later he accepted the position of first concertmaster of Amsterdam's great Concertgebouw orchestra. At the same time he was concertmaster of the Amsterdam Chamber Orchestra and a professor in the Amsterdam Conservatory. He also has appeared as soloist with many of Europe's great orchestras and under most of the top conductors.

Everyone Profits By This Invention

LONDON—It is always pleasant when things done for the sake of suffering humanity turn out to be profitable as well.

Anyone who has tried to work in an office in the course of reconstruction, or sleep while contractors were building a nearby bridge, will wish Taylor Woodrow success with the world sales of their new silent pile-driver.

This ingenious, but simple device, uses 200-ton hydraulic jacks, bracing themselves against the 600 tons "sack" of the earth, to push the piles into the ground like a fork into butter.

And as well as doing it with a noise equivalent to the purr of a small car, against the normal agonizing multi-decibel bang, roughly equivalent to a jet taking off. It also happens to be about six times faster (at a steady rate of 20 inches a minute) than the conventional method.

The hydraulic head costs somewhere around $42,000, and the company expects a substantial demand.

Labor Unrest Denied

VANCOUVER (CP)—Labor Minister Peterson said Thursday he is disturbed over statements that B.C. is a place of industrial unrest and instability—a province plagued by strikes and lockouts.

If these statements are believed, the province's whole industrial development program could be placed in jeopardy, he said.

Appearing before some of his sternest critics at the western region conference of the International Woodworkers of America, Mr. Peterson denied the provincial Social Credit government is anti-labor.

"If I thought there was any substance in the anti-labor accusation, I would not appear before you today," he said.

He said B.C. last year had one of the best records of industrial peace on the continent and industrial peace is necessary if labor is to have the success at the bargaining table to which it is entitled.

When he had finished, regional president Jack Moore told him that if industrial peace means "some kind of a system where workers are able to obtain a fair distribution of wealth," the unions are all for it.

"But if it means that the large corporations are allowed to gouge the country's industrial resources, we will have no part of it," he said.

Strawberry Plants Still Producing

Strawberry plants at the home of John Westland, 3217 Millgrove, are still putting out their fair share of berries.

Mrs. Westland told the Colonist last night she had put down four jars of strawberry jam with berries picked from the garden, "and there are still more growing," she said.

The Westlands have been growing strawberries for the past three years.

Order Quashed

Judge Raps Labor Board Second Time

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mr. Justice Lord has quashed certification by the provincial labor relations board of a union as bargaining agent for workers of Loomis Armored Car Service Limited.

It was the second time in two days the court had criticized the labor relations board for failing to act judicially and for "startling" conduct.

Mr. Justice Lord ruled the board failed to act judicially and in good faith in certifying the Miscellaneous Workers' Wholesale and Retail Delivery Drivers and Helpers, Local 303 in the Loomis company.

UNION GIVEN EDGE
He said the union was furnished with a copy of the company's submission to the board and was allowed to reply to it, but the union's submission was not shown to the company.

Tuesday, Mr. Justice H. J. Sullivan criticized the board for contravening a court order and attempting to deny natural justice in White Lunch Limited in a union dispute. He described the board's conduct as "startling."

University Head

The appointment of Patrick Duncan McTaggart-Cowan as president of Simon Fraser University has been announced by university Chancellor Gordon Shrum.

The new president has been controller of Canada's meteorological services since 1959. In 1934 Dr. McTaggart-Cowan was selected as B.C.'s Rhodes scholar and graduated two years later from Oxford with honors and a BA degree in natural sciences.

Victoria Area Horsemen Planning Four Events

Victoria area horsemen and women are planning four events, one of them social, during the next two weeks.

A dance sponsored by the Garden City Horsemen's Club will be held in Brentwood Community Hall from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. today.

Sunday junior members of the Garden City club plan a ride through the Highlands. The ride will start from the corner of Hartland and West Seanch Road at 9 a.m. All corners are welcome, whether members or not.

Lunches will be provided for riders at a nominal cost.

RACE PLANNED
Vancouver Island Polo Club will stage a cross-country race starting at 12:30 p.m. at the Polo Grounds, Telegraph Road at Patricia Bay Highway Sunday.

Riders are asked to wear either hunting or riding clothes, hard hats and boots. There will be junior, senior and open classes. There is no charge for spectators. Entries are being accepted by Mrs. G. B. Parker, 1803 Hovey Road, OR 6-3438.

On Sunday, Oct. 20 the annual Mount Douglas trail horse championship will be held, starting from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Mesher, 4047 Blenkinsop Road, who will accept entries up to midnight Wednesday.

The trials are open to riders of all ages and will start at 1 p.m. Oct. 20. Entry fees will range from $1 to $3 in the junior, intermediate and senior classes.

Sculptor Lectures Wednesday

Scottish sculptor Charles Orville Pilkington Jackson will lecture in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

His subject will be making of the statue of The Bruce, mounted on his charger, which is being erected on the field of the Battle of Bannockburn in Stirlingshire, Scotland.

Mr. Jackson's works, which include the Scottish War Memorial in Edinburgh, are famous throughout the world.

Car on Head

HOUSTON (UPI)—Donald Viasek heard the braces giving way and tried frantically to get out from under the car that was settling down on top of him in a garage.

The University of Houston student felt the rear axle against the side of his head and the full weight of the vehicle slowly pinned his skull to the concrete floor Tuesday night.

SCREAMED SEVEN HOURS
For more than seven hours, the 21-year-old, former high school football player screamed and banged the side of the car with his arms. No one heard him.

"I thought I was dead," Viasek said later.

Finally, his brother, Travis, came into the garage early Wednesday morning and found him—still conscious.

"When we found him he was so hoarse from screaming you could hardly hear him," Travis said. "Donald said in a very calm manner to get the keys and open the trunk and jack the car up. His ear was hurting him, so we had to be careful."

Travis, another brother, Forrest, 23, and the father, Frank Viasek, raised the car, freeing Donald. Doctors said he suffered ear injuries and a mild case of exposure from lying on the cold concrete.

Lions Place Salt Spring On Roller Skate Wheels

FULFORD—Roller skates are being bought by the Salt Spring Lions Club for use in the Fulford Hall's second season of skating sessions which began Oct. 5.

Skating was so popular last year, with all ages wanting to get in on the fun, that the Lions decided to buy equipment instead of borrowing it.

Stolen Goods

Roy Found Guilty, Gets Six Years

Adrian Roy was found guilty on eight of nine counts of possession of stolen goods in B.C. Assize Court yesterday, and was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary.

Roy's first request after he was sentenced was that several thousands of dollars worth of goods in his possession that were not proved to be stolen be returned to him.

Much of the $7,000 to $8,000 worth of goods seized by police in a raid to his home April 27 could not be traced, so Roy did not face charges on all the goods seized.

COULD NOT RULE

Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes said he could not rule on the request at this time, since the Crown is still carrying on investigations in an attempt to trace the goods.

Crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie pointed out that Roy, 2991 Glen Lake Road, had two previous convictions on his record. He was convicted of shoplifting in 1958, and theft over $50 in 1961, for which he received a four-month sentence.

NO DOUBT

In sentencing Roy, Mr. Justice McInnes said, "I have no doubt you are a thief of the first order."

He sentenced him to six years on each of the eight counts, but the sentences will run concurrently.

In delivering his summation of the case to the court, Mr. McKenzie pointed out that there were nine items in question. He pointed out that whatever goods were sold by Roy were sold at giveaway prices.

He emphasized the fact that when Samich detective Robin Stewart asked him where he had got the goods he would give no explanation, but said simply: "I can't tell you. Other people are involved."

In summarizing his case, Roy pointed out that there was some doubt as to whether some of the goods in court were the ones stolen. He said several witnesses had admitted the goods could have been sold.

TWO YEARS

Mr. Justice McInnes pointed out to the jury in his charge that there seemed to be reasonable doubt that a rifle had been stolen, since it had disappeared about two years before it was discovered in Roy's possession. He was found not guilty on that count.

'People Come First'

The wait-walk signs on downtown streets are designed for pedestrian safety, city council was told Thursday.

"People are our first thought," said Ald. Millard Mooney, chairman of the traffic committee.

He was replying to a query by Ald. J. L. W. McLean, who wanted to know if the pedestrian crossing signs were meant primarily to serve the interests of the pedestrian.

The traffic engineering department is busy making a survey of the time lapse on the wait-walk signs to determine whether improvements can be made at some locations.

U.S. Bills a Worry

B.C. Forest Industry Vows: Let's Co-operate, Not Fight

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's forest industry, worried about more than 50 bills introduced in the United States Congress this year, has told American producers it would rather co-operate than fight.

At the same time it is attempting to bring about defeat of the bills which would limit the sales of Canadian—primarily B.C.—produced lumber in the U.S.

The Council of Forest Industries of B.C. has sent between 2,000 and 3,000 fact-laden pamphlets, printed on behalf of the entire B.C. industry, to congressmen, senators, lumber producers, newspapers and columnists in the Washington, D.C. area, home builders and retail lumber companies.

It says Canadian imports

make up only 14.6 per cent of the U.S. consumption and are not the cause of any trouble in the American industry. It quotes heavily from the report of the U.S. Tariff Commission in February which rejected a domestic industry request for restrictions.

"It says industry problems are common on both sides of the border and cannot be solved by a 'hostile and self-destructive effort' to restrict Canadian imports."

CITE COMMON PROBLEMS

The common problems were the growing variety of cheaper substitutes to lumber and the constant need to modernize equipment and production methods.

"... What is called for is a massive constructive and cooperative effort to increase consumer acceptance of lumber as a building material, not only in the U.S. and Canada, but in many potential export markets abroad.

"In such an effort, Canadian producers can be counted upon as eager partners."

A council spokesman said Thursday the Canadian industry is making contributions to the national wood promotion program in the U.S. which is attempting to combat the growing use of such products as steel and aluminum in house construction.

Canadian imports resulted in lower housing costs, made it possible for the U.S. industry to concentrate on higher-profit products such as plywood and helped Canada be the No. 1 customer of U.S. industry.

Ottawa Ready

Mr. Pearson gave no indication of any time limit on Judge Lippe's efforts. Nor did he say whether the government would first attempt personal mediation by Labor Minister MacEachen or ask Parliament to impose compulsory arbitration of the wage dispute.

Mr. Pearson emerged from a cabinet meeting to tell reporters the government still hopes for a settlement. But he added: "This can't go on indefinitely."

ANY STEPS

Asked whether the government has prepared legislation for compulsory arbitration in the event it is needed, Mr. Pearson replied: "We will be prepared to take any steps that are required. That is not a matter that would take long to introduce."

Then he boarded the transport department's 530-mile-an-hour Jetstar for a fast visit to Toronto, where he told a joint luncheon meeting of the Empire Club and the Canadian Club:

BACK TO WORK

"A strong Canadian national purpose rejects, I believe, the idea that the government should forcibly intervene in a labor dispute which has become a lawful strike after the required processes of collective bargaining have been exhausted; intervene, that is, in order to force men back to work, by law."

"But a strong national purpose means that if the national interest is seriously and demonstrably damaged, if serious national consequences are flowing from a strike, and if all reasonable efforts at mediation are exhausted, then government must intervene to stop the strike."

QUESTIONED

Meanwhile Judge Lippe was meeting with the longshoremen and the shipping federation, and Mr. MacEachen was being questioned in the Commons by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker about the mediation.

Mr. MacEachen said the judge "is not yet satisfied that a settlement is impossible."

"There is no one more concerned than I about this particular dispute and its ramifications, but I do believe that having given this responsibility at this stage to Judge Lippe, we ought to give him our confidence and support until he has exhausted all the meditative processes."

MAY NOT FAIL

When former transport minister Leon Balcer asked whether Judge Lippe's meeting Thursday would be the last before the minister steps in, Mr. Mac-

Eachen answered that "the assumption behind that question is that Judge Lippe is going to fail."

Social Credit Leader Thompson asked whether it is true that the government—in the event of failure to settle the strike—is contemplating making use of the Canadian armed forces to load and unload shipping.

NO COMMENT

Mr. MacEachen: "I have no comment to make on that question, Mr. Speaker, which has within itself, it seems to me, the kind of possibility that will not assist in the settlement of this problem."

David Pugh (PC—Okanagan-Burnaby) asked whether it is true that all leave has been cancelled for the RCMP and the army in Quebec and Ontario.

"If that is so, I am certainly not aware of it," replied Justice Minister Chevrier.

Wheat for Russia Being Loaded Here

Victoria's first grain shipment under last month's $500 million wheat deal with Russia is being loaded today aboard the Russian motor ship Aldanles.

The 2,350-ton Vladivostok-registered freighter docked last night at Ogden Point. She will take on 5,250 tons of wheat—194,000 bushels—before returning to the Russian coast.

Several women were among about 30 crew members when the vessel docked last night.

VMD Submits Low Bid For New Comox Ferry

Victoria Machinery Depot has submitted the low bid of $485,177 to build a new Comox-Westview car-passenger ferry, scheduled to go into operation by June, 1964.

The Victoria firm is almost certain to get the contract which will bring new employment to the Victoria area. Other firms who submitted bids included Allied Shipbuilders of New Westminster, Burrard Drydock and Yarrow.

Tenders for twin 750-horsepower engines will be called later and will be installed at the VMD yard.

The new ferry will be 150 feet long and will carry 25 cars, 200 passengers, and will have a restaurant seating 50 persons.

'Valleys Calm'

Bennett Back To Work

Premier W. A. C. Bennett went back to work yesterday after a short, post-election vacation in California.

He held no press conference but told newsmen on his way to a cabinet meeting he attended two World Series baseball games in Los Angeles.

Asked about developments in provincial affairs, Premier Bennett replied: "Everything is calm in the valleys."

People Will Pour Into Saanich

By JACK FREY

A major population explosion is expected in Saanich within a few years as available land in Oak Bay and Esquimalt disappears and heavy suburban development rolls northward from Greater Victoria.

The northward movement will be absorbed in a large triangular chunk of Saanich stretching from Ten-Mile

Point and Cordova Bay to the Wilkinson and Burnside Roads intersection.

"A boom will occur in this part of Saanich," municipal planner Antony Parr predicted yesterday.

By 1976, Saanich will be getting 64.62 per cent of Greater Victoria's population increase, while increases elsewhere will be only 19 per cent in Victoria, 10 per cent in Oak Bay, five per cent in Esquimalt and 1.38 per cent in View Royal, he said.

There will be a tremendous demand for all types of services including schools, stores, roads, sidewalks and street lighting as young families with children move into the area.

By 1961, the present population of 16,495 in the triangle will have been tripled to 49,985 and in addition to the 61 stores there now some 32 acres of land will have to be rezoned for commercial use to satisfy the needs of the populace.

In an effort to cope with some of the anticipated problems, the municipal planning department prepared a commercial development study forecasting the future commercial needs of the area.

This report, now in the hands of Saanich councillors, will serve as a guide during the next few years when day-to-day rezoning applications come before council.

Mr. Parr said he also hopes that council at the appropriate time will rezone land for commercial use ahead of actual development in the area.

The commercial development study, projected to 1981, predicts where shopping centres up to 15 acres in size, neighbourhood commercial areas up to five acres in size and 1 to 1½-acre corner stores may be needed.

"We are subject to rezoning applications from time to time for all sorts of odd spots throughout the municipality and the main purpose of this report is to forecast what the needs will really be," said the planner.

The large, undeveloped western portion of the municipality, meanwhile, probably will be bypassed for many years as the steamroller of suburban development rolls north through Cordova Bay into Central Saanich.

Edgelow Raps Mooney

Resurvey Plan 'Vacillation'

By IAN STREET

The Centennial Square pot continued to boil throughout Thursday's city council meeting.

This time it was Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow who brought up the subject.

WITH 'WEATHER VANE'

Rising on a point of privilege at the start of the meeting, Ald. Edgelow attacked what he termed the "weather vane navigation" in city affairs advocated by Ald. Milford Mooney.

Ald. Mooney, who raised a storm the previous day when he called for a complete resurvey of the $2,000,000 civic project, said "for special reasons" he wasn't going to speak on the subject in council.

CAN'T BE SILENT

He could not hold to this resolve since Ald. Edgelow had opened the discussion, Ald. Mooney said.

In discussions with other members of council, Ald. Mooney said, he had found several who claimed that no change was possible in Centennial Square plans because it was too late.

ELECTION WARNING

"I was fearful of bringing this matter forward," he added. "I was told that if I did bring this forward I would be defeated in the December civic elections."

The whole affair, despite Ald. Mooney's claim that he wasn't opposed to the Centennial Square scheme, is bound to leave an impression of city council indecision in the mind of the public, said Ald. Edgelow.

NOT GOOD POLICY

"The public is wondering if we have torn up the heart of the city, then moved by chance to this area and decided suddenly this would make a good city hall," Ald. Edgelow said. "This kind of vacillating policy isn't good."

He added that the courthouse in Bastion Square was only one of many possible locations for city hall.

NO QUESTION

But there remains "no question in my mind," Ald. Edgelow said, concerning the choice of the Centennial Square project which will "brighten the whole centre of the city and join Government and Douglas Street in an area that is presently rundown."

Ald. Mooney denied that he was "only setting up a sensational news story."

WANTS TO BE SURE

"I don't want to throw a monkey wrench into the procedure," Ald. Mooney said. "I only want to make sure that we're heading in the right direction. Now is the time for any possible change—not a year from now."

"I can't support Ald. Mooney in any of his remarks," Ald. Austin Curtis said. "It would be a bad mistake to consider this courthouse as a permanent city hall."

WOULD BE UPSET

"I think the people want us to continue with plans already made, and endorsed by an overwhelming ratepayer vote, and would be upset if we now considered a change," he added. Acting Mayor Arthur Dowell said "there is no question in my mind that this building is totally inadequate for use as a permanent city hall."

IMPROPER APPROACH

Ald. A. W. Toone, chairman of the Centennial Square planning commission, whose other members are Ald. Dowell and the absent Mayor R. B. Wilson, accused Ald. Mooney of making "an improper approach through newspapers" instead of bringing his views before the planning body.

Mayor Centennial Adviser

Mayor E. B. Wilson was named yesterday to a 60-member advisory body which will help prepare the 1967 centennial of Confederation.

The only other person from British Columbia who will serve on the advisory board are Mrs. H. F. Angus of Vancouver and Mayor Maurice F. Flannery of Port Huron.

$49,000 Added to Cost Of Renovating City Hall

An increase of $49,000 in the Centennial Square budget for renovation of city hall, to be entirely covered by the anticipated recovery from winter works grants, was approved by city council Thursday.

Ald. A. W. Toone, chairman of the overall planning committee, said the greater part of the increase was meant to cover cost of filling in a light well and adding a second floor above the comptroller's office.

The estimated $35,000 needed for this new construction was omitted in setting up the original budget of $235,000.

After retaining a chartered firm of quantity surveyors from Vancouver, the consulting architects Wade, Stockhill and Armour came in with "some fantastic cost figure which the committee just would not accept," said Ald. Toone.

The new $274,000 estimated total cost of city hall renovation includes $8,000 to cover increased federal sales tax and $6,000 for a ventilation system.

$5,000 Swells Total

The Greater Victoria United Appeal total, swelled by $5,000 yesterday, has reached 18.5 per cent of the 1963 goal of $400,000.

The firm and business district canvass is continuing this week and has been "pretty good" according to appeal officials.

The residential canvass begins Tuesday.

In Underworld

Stolen Drugs Worth Plenty

A quantity of drugs which could be worth thousands of dollars in the underworld market were stolen from a storage cabinet at the McGill and Orme drug store, 1105 Pandora, overnight Wednesday.

Police said thieves broke a window on the north side of the pharmacy, located in the Medical Arts Building, to gain entry. They then tried to open a drawer in the heavy, locked storage cabinet and took the drugs.

Stolen were 14 ounces of opium, 175 ampules of morphine, 300 morphine tablets, two ounces of cocaine powder, 300 cubic centimetres of demerol and 200 dilaudid tablets.

The theft was discovered at about 8 a.m. Thursday when a caretaker found the broken window and noticed that several drawers in the store had been ransacked.

NO MONEY

Store manager Frank Boughey said no money had been taken, and the legitimate value of the drugs had not yet been determined.

Even in its dying hours, Fountain Circle still claims traffic accidents. Van driver Bernard Woolley, 2980 Inlet, is interviewed by Const. Dave Glancy while his passenger, Dicco

Forest Week

Lights to Shine

A string of lights proclaiming National Forest Products Week will be hung over the Causeway from Oct. 20 to 26.

B.C.'s huge forest industry will join in the cross-Canada observation and in Victoria a number of retail lumber firms will be trying to recapture a national award taken by a city firm last year.

Doman's Lumber Co. Ltd. won the award last year for a homeowners' exhibition in its Bay Street store, featuring building supply display booths in connection with the Canada-wide National Forest Products Week, Oct. 20 to 26. Theme of half a dollar and half a tree suggests that half of every dollar in B.C. comes from forest industry.

W. B. Hemmingsen, manager of Sothe Forest Products Ltd., is chairman for National Forest

New symbol for contribution of forest products industry to B.C.'s economy is this emblem shown up in connection with Canada-wide National Forest Products Week, Oct. 20 to 26. Theme of half a dollar and half a tree suggests that half of every dollar in B.C. comes from forest industry.

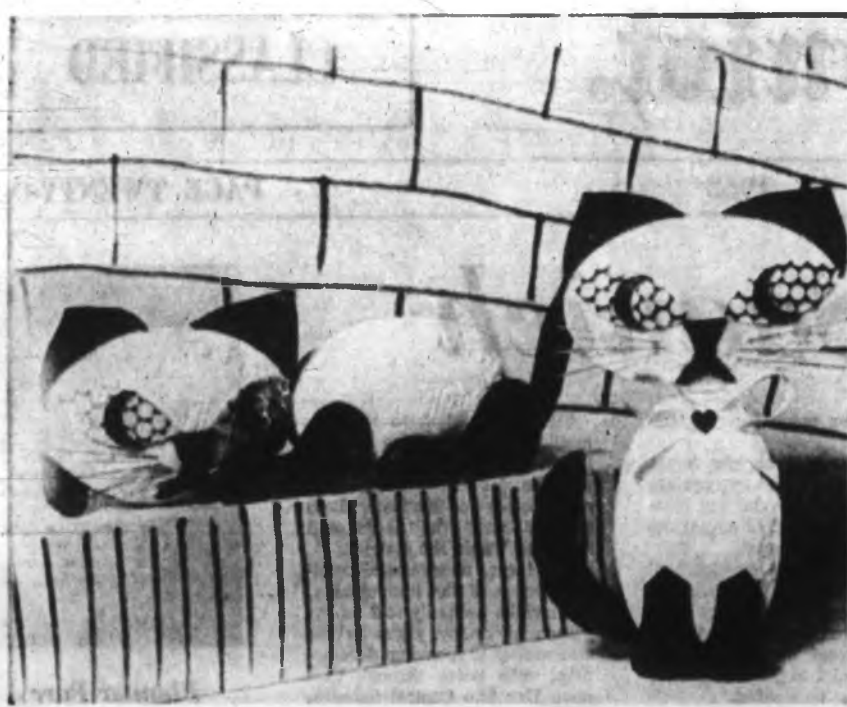

Products Week activities in the Victoria area this year.

It is hoped that a portable spar tree can be rigged at a central location for people to see and that a display can be arranged in the downtown area, he said yesterday.

The forest products industry will distribute 30,000 car bumper stickers to its employees, and some plants and mills may open their doors for special tours by the public during the week.

Theme of the promotion will be "Half Your Dollars from Forest Products." to stress the importance of the forest industry to B.C.'s economy.

Nearly half of the province's income comes from lumber, newsprint, pulp, plywood and other forest industry products.

Recent Bride Feted

Friends and relatives honored Mrs. William M. Trenholme the former Sylvia Holt, at several showers prior to her recent marriage.

Miss Carol Kirkendale was hostess at a miscellaneous shower for the recent bride. Corsages were presented to the guest of honor, her mother, Mrs. George B. Holt, and the mother of the groom, Mrs. William A. Trenholm. Gifts were contained in a turquoise and white decorated sailboat.

Other guests were Mrs. D. H. Kirkendale, Mrs. J. Kirkendale, Mrs. S. Owen, Mrs. D. Pater-son, Mrs. D. Greenwood, Mrs. B. Borden, Mrs. G. Hutcheson and the Misses Jennie Holt, Valerie Holt, Joan Harris, Julie Banfield, Joan Woolison, Valerie Kirkendale and Sue Kirkendale.

Shower Fetes Bride-Elect

Miss Jeraldine McEwen, whose marriage takes place on Saturday, was feted at a surprise shower held at her home, 1629 Camosun Street. Gifts were presented in a pink and white wishing well. Corsages were presented to the guest of honor and her mother, Mrs. J. A. McEwen. Mrs. M. Curtis and Mrs. L. Masure provided the entertainment. Other guests were Mrs. A. Cuning, Mrs. G. Nicholson, Mrs. E. Dickinson, Mrs. G. Bater and the Misses Lyn Nelson and Barbara Dickinson.

Women, and their whole families, are beginning to take an interest in this hobby. It makes an unusual and creative pastime at parties, and many organizations now work at soap decoration in connection with their fund-raising projects.

A Fascinating Woman Is Unselfish, Happy

NEW YORK (UPI)—Man in his search for a lifetime mate looks first for the virtuous traits; where her love for him and interest in him are his strength. "Unselfishness is a hard trait to acquire," he said, "but it is a basis of being fascinating."

woman. Her attractiveness is the second requisite, says a California man who is determined to mold all women into paragons of fascination.

"The way I look at it," said John Leslie, of his latest venture, "the more we do to improve women, the more we men stand to benefit."

Leslie, 51, married, the father of a son and grandfather of three children, is a retired lumberman, building contractor and resort hotel owner, who has turned researcher-author on how a woman can become fascinating.

 "To me, the fascinating woman is the happy woman," said Leslie, in an interview. "She's learned the art of pleasing. Part of the art is unselfishness . . . which in turn is part of love. Femininity is her most powerful weapon."

Lealle was in New York in connection with publication of his latest works on how a woman becomes a charmer.

Leslie said he began delving into feminine charm when he operated a resort hotel in Missoula, Mont. He found that many of the patrons—for all their material richness—were unhappy, once they let their hair down.

"And let's face it," said Leslie. "All you have to do is walk down the street and see the numbers of unattractive women, even though they silently wish to be otherwise."

Leslie retired from business in 1948, and figures he's put most of the time since in research. It includes talks with motion picture stars ("I found a lot of them unhappy even though they were supposed to have everything"), courses in fashion, design and color, work with department store ready-to-wear sections, even a course in a charm school.

Leslie said some of the most telling parts of his research came in interviews with 500 men or what they looked for in a woman. The men ranged from bank presidents to truck drivers, and included the married, the single, the divorced and the widowed.

"Basically, all want a good woman, a virtuous woman," he said. "I thought most of them would mention beauty first. But the subject of beauty rarely came up. Attractiveness rated second. But a woman doesn't have to be beautiful to be attractive, as you know."

Leslie believes it is woman's role to "make a man strong enough for her to lean on." Here, he said, is where her femininity complements him by bringing out his masculine You'll need and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough water to fill the bottle. Shake two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

At your first purchase do not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, chest, waist, hips and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by doctors and helping bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly fat disappears from your body to your youth. More alive, youthful appearing and active. ADV.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. D. Atchison, 3333 Tennyson Avenue, will be at home to their friends on Monday, Oct. 14, from 3 to 5 p.m. and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Atchison were married at Strawberry Hill, Surrey, on Oct. 15, 1913. For some years they lived at Union Bay on Vancouver Island and in 1928 the family moved to Victoria where they have since resided. They have four daughters and one son, Miss Isabel Atchison at home; Mrs. David (Florence) Dunn, Alameda, Calif.; Mrs. Norman (Jean) Duckworth, Duncan; Mrs. C. W. (Stella) Callbeck, 1443 Grant Street, Victoria; and Mr. Victor Atchison, 1523 Elm Street. They also have 10 grandchildren.

Wedding Guests

Guests here for the wedding of Miss Marilyn-Rae Savage and Mr. J. T. Almond included Mrs. L. B. Jones, Mrs. G. L. Jones, Mr. L. W. Savage, Mr. M. Laka, Mr. and Mrs. Little with sons, Raymond, Douglas and Roddy; Mr. and Mrs. J. Mackray, Mr. and Mrs. R. Mackray, Mr. and Mrs. K. O. Everett, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stevenson and son, John, and Miss Myrelen Shetterly, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. R. Stapleton, North Surrey; Mrs. Agnes McArthur, Mr. and Mrs. F. Spencer, and Mrs. P. McArthur, Nanaimo; Mr. and Mrs. J. McLean and son, Allan, Port Alberni.

Returns Home

Miss Kathleen Paton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Paton, 630 Cowper Street, has returned home after touring Great Britain and Europe for the past two months.

Miscellaneous Shower

Miss Marlene Earle was honored at a miscellaneous shower recently given by Mrs. N. Hunter and Mrs. N. White. Miss Earle and her mother received carnation corsages. The many gifts were placed under a decorated umbrella. Guests were Mrs. C. Earle, Mrs. G. Jones, Mrs. K. Gallop, Miss M. Blake, Mrs. V. Harrison, Mrs. F. Thomas, Mrs. D. Flood, Mrs. B. Wolochuk, Mrs. M. Taylor, Mrs. M. Laird, Mrs. I. Petreuk, Mrs. D. Truscott, Mrs. J. McPherson, Mrs. D. Alexander, Mrs. B. Brouard, Mrs. J. Mumford, Mrs. V. Wilkinson, Mrs. G. Ludlam, Mrs. F. Wood and Mrs. R. Jorde.

The slouch—sophistication at its most elegant from the Toronto millinery industry—is a hat of classic lines, with only a band of grosgrain to draw the eye to the line of the hat.

Bridal Showers

Mrs. Raymond Mellings, the former Debbie Blake, was honored recently by her many friends at bridal showers.

Mrs. J. Gregg and Mrs. K. Griffin were co-hostesses at a miscellaneous shower at the home of the latter.

Gifts were in a decorated box centred with a bride doll. The guest of honor was presented with a yellow carnation corsage, while her mother Mrs. C. Blake and the groom's mother, Mrs. M. Mellings, received rose corsages.

Invited guests were Mrs. B. Annable, Mrs. N. Godbold, Mrs. P. Wilson, Mrs. M. Hackwell, Mrs. E. Bryan, Mrs. M. Wallace, Mrs. E. Griffin, Mrs. A. Holder, Mrs. Mylie, Mrs. K. Barber, Mrs. J. Clarke and the Misses Roberta Blake, Barbara Blake, Phyll Musselwhite, Donna Mellings, Jean Bligh, Diane Soberg, and Miss D. Godbold, Mrs. H. Bligh, Mrs. J. Hottel, and Mrs. J. Stewart.

Mrs. M. Hackwell and Mrs. J. Hackwell were co-hostesses in a surprise shower at the Cadboro Bay home of the latter. Gifts were contained in a decorated grocery box.

Invited guests were: Mrs. C. Blake, Mrs. M. Mellings, Mrs. M. Colebert, Mrs. L. Bennett, Mrs. F. Mitchell, Mrs. Heaslip, Sr., Mrs. C. Bailey, Mrs. M. Wilson, Mrs. L. Green, Mrs. P. Boklage, Mrs. D. O'Brien, Mrs. G. Jagow, Mrs. P. Heaslip, Mrs. P. Redfern, Mrs. P. Punt, Mrs. E. Bennett and Mrs. L. Kinsman; and the Misses B. Blake, R. Blake, D. Mellings, and P. O'Brien; Mrs. J. Gregg, Mrs. H. McIvor, Miss M. McIvor, Miss L. Bennett, Mrs. R. Barrett, Mrs. R. Droob.

The engagement is announced of Constance Dora, daughter of Mrs. Holmes, 2302 Oak Bay Avenue, and the late Mr. Charles F. Holmes, to Thomas Foster Isherwood, son of Mrs. Isherwood of 2450 Lansdowne

Road, and the late Mr. Thomas C. Isherwood. The wedding will take place at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, on Saturday, Nov. 2, at 3:30 p.m. with the Rev. Canon Hywel Jones officiating.—(Jus-Rite)

Parents Go East For RCAF Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Galley, 1108 Hadfield Avenue, recently travelled to Camp Borden, Ont., to attend the wedding of their daughter, Linda Margaret, and David Frederick Laughren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Laughren of Hull, Quebec.

Flt.-Lt. H. McLeod officiated. The Protestant chapel of the RCAF station at Camp Borden was decorated with pink and white gladioli for the ceremony. Mrs. A. LaPointe played the organ.

BRIDAL GOWN

The bride's ballerina-length gown of silk poplin was fashioned with fitted bodice and sweetheart neckline. Appliqued lace medallions enhanced the skirt and neckline. Pale yellow roses and pink feathered carnations were in her bouquet.

Boat Holds Shower Gifts

Bride-elect Miss Margaret Hunter was honored recently at a bridal shower at the home of Mrs. E. Turner, 1328 Haultain Street. Miss Margaret Turner was hostess. A decorated boat, inscribed with the words "HMCS Love," held the many gifts. Red and white carnation corsages were presented to the bride-to-be, her mother, Mrs. G. R. Hunter, and her aunt, Miss Kathleen Hunter.

Other guests were Mrs. R. Britton, Mrs. E. Schofield, Mrs. D. Rees, Mrs. E. Barnes, Mrs. R. Stratford, Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. H. Hargus, Mrs. F. Robinson, Mrs. T. Hunter, Mrs. A. Feather, and the Misses Beverley Feather, Laurie Stratford, Marnie Britton and Charlotte Barnes.

A shoulder-length veil misted from a crown of yellow roses. She was given in marriage by her father.

Gown of pink embroidered organza with matching bolero and crown of roses and net en tone were choice of bridesmatron Mrs. Robert Bowman, Barrie, Ont. She carried pink rapture roses and white feathered carnations.

Robert Bowman, Barrie, Ont., was best man. Usher was George Bryan, Alliston, Ont.

D. Zala and Robert Bowman proposed toasts to the bride and groom at a reception in Camp Borden social centre. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, made and decorated by her mother.

On return from a honeymoon trip to Niagara Falls, the couple will make their home in Alliston, Ont. Both are stationed at Camp Borden, RCAF Station.

A brown knit suit with accessories en tone and fur-trimmed hat were worn by the bride for travelling. Yellow roses were in her corsage.

WA Party Nets $1,100

About $1,100 was raised at the Woman's Auxiliary of the Royal Jubilee Hospital coffee party Wednesday morning in the nurses' home. The net proceeds will go toward paying for the humidity oxygen tent now in use on the second floor of the hospital.

Mrs. George Peakes, wife of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, was guest-of-honor. Mrs. Glen Coffey, president, welcomed the guests.

A profusion of roses and chrysanthemums, tastefully arranged in baskets, added a touch of beauty to the main lounge for the annual event. An artistic arrangement of pink roses, flanked by candles, centered the tea table. The flowers were later sent to sick members in the hospital.

Mrs. W. G. Thorpe was general convener, with Mrs. R. Hopkins, Mrs. C. Conrad and Miss Edna Wallace as her committee. Mrs. F. E. Loveday was in charge of the miscellaneous stall and was assisted by Mrs. H. B. Nash, Mrs. J. F. Hough, Mrs. H. P. McIntyre, Mrs. J. L. Hobbs was contest convener, assisted by Mrs. T. Oliphant and Mrs. J. C. B. Keane; Mrs. Foster Smith, baby stall convener; Mrs. Amy Deas, tickets, assisted by Mrs. C. C. Riach.

Mrs. Peakes drew the "pay as you pull" winners, while Miss M. O'Brien and Miss V. Stirling drew the other contest winners.

Pourers were Mrs. G. Master, Mrs. M. Anderson, Mrs. R. Hill, Mrs. S. MacPhail, Mrs. J. Woodsworth, Mrs. E. Clement and the Misses B. Gow, O. Wilson, M. Plunkett and V. Stirling. Members of the auxiliary served refreshments.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl almost 17 who has an unusual problem. I have boy friends galore. I could have two dates every single night in the week if I wanted them. And I'm not what you would call beautiful either. I just seem to attract fellows. It's been this way since I was 13.

My problem is I don't have one girl friend to my name. Girls just don't like me, Ann. I feel badly about this although I try not to show it. But I would gladly give 20 boy friends if I could have just one girl friend who actually liked me.

Can you help me? I don't recall ever having seen this problem in your column before. Thank you.—HALF LONELY.

Dear Lonely: The best way to get friendship is to give it. You have probably shied away from girls and behaved indifferently toward them because you assumed they did not like you. And quite naturally, these girls reacted to your coolness.

When you are next in a group of boys and girls make a special effort to pay attention to the girls instead of the boys. Warmth begets warmth—as you will see.

Dear Ann Landers: I wrote you in May about an unfaithful husband. I took your advice and things seem to be a great deal better. Now I have another problem.

I recently learned that the two paintings hanging in our living room were done by this other woman and not a gift from a business associate as my husband told me when he brought them home. I have always liked the paintings and they have hung in our home for almost four years. Now that I know who did the paintings I get sick to my stomach whenever I look at them.

Last night I told my husband how I felt and he said I was being childish—that he liked the pictures and that I should let them hang. He swears the affair is over between him and this woman (and I have every reason to believe him) and that therefore removing the pictures would be silly.

May we hear from you on this?—BUTTERFLIES IN MY BRAIN.

Dear Brain: People often move art when they redecorate. Doesn't your living room need new wallpaper or paint? Aren't you tired of the furniture in the same place for four years?

Perhaps it's time to move things around a little. Those paintings might look better in the hall for a few weeks—and then in the attic.

Dear Ann Landers: I need an older person to tell me what to do and it can't be anyone who knows me, so you are elected.

I am a 14-year-old girl who is far from beautiful but I have lots of friends. Three weeks ago my mother's step-

THE DIFFERENCE IN SWEET VERMOUTHS

Most brands of sweet vermouth are slightly heavier than Martini & Rossi. They smell stronger... taste stronger, and look a little darker in the glass. Some people prefer them.

Martini & Rossi is a lighter vermouth. It is famous for its light, yet lively taste. Because of this, it is more subtle in cocktails... more refreshing on the rocks. Many people prefer it.

Traffic Death

Act 'Almost Like Murder' Brings Year's Jail, Fine

Larry Edmond Neil was sentenced to one year in jail and fined $150 in B.C. Assize Court yesterday for his part in the June 14 traffic death of Neil Kirby.

He was found guilty in B.C. Assize Court last week on two counts of criminal negligence and one of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He was sentenced to one year on one of the criminal negligence charges, and to six months on the other, but both sentences will run concurrently. The fine was imposed for failing to remain at the scene.

Previous convictions for impaired driving in 1961 and careless driving in 1962 were cited by Crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie.

Defence counsel Foster Isherwood pointed out that the impaired driving charge had arisen when Neil was found in his car with the ignition turned off. The careless driving charge came when he drove through a stop sign. "Your act was almost like an act of murder," said Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes in sentencing Neil. "It is a miracle you didn't kill Mrs. Kirkpatrick."

Theft, Possession Cost 15 Months

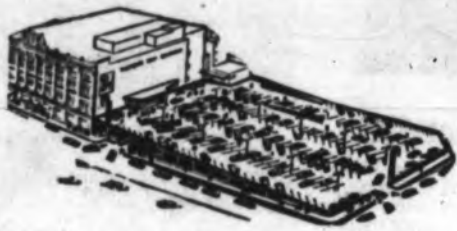

George Rosman, who was found guilty in B.C. Assize Court Monday for theft and possession of stolen goods, yesterday was sentenced to two 15-month terms in jail, to run concurrently.

Crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie cited four previous convictions for Rosman between 1937 and 1961, including robbery with violence, breaking and entering, and theft. He will serve the term at Oakalla.

$40,000,000 for Hydro

The provincial government will bear interest of up to six per cent a year and may be held until Dec. 31, 1964. The notes cover $25,000,000 in new borrowing for property purchases and construction, and $15,000,000 to refinance current short-term loans. Current borrowings for the authority total some $131,000,000 compared with a legislative maximum of $500,000,000.

Fire Drill To Win Trophy

The Oak Bay Firefighters school challenge trophy will be awarded next week to the school in the municipality carrying out the most efficient fire drill.

Firemen have been attending at the schools this week—Fire Prevention Week—and will announce the winner later. The trophy is donated annually by Local 730 of the firemen's union.

The firemen will be hosts at an open house Saturday in the Monterey firehall. The men will demonstrate the use of firefighting equipment, including the new pumper truck.

School Trustees Want Some Pay

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia school trustees want some pay for their work.

The provincial association went on record Wednesday with a request for expenses and up to $25 a day to an annual $250 maximum for loss of earnings while on school board business.

CANT AFFORD TO RUN
A resolution from Coquitlam said some taxpayers cannot afford to run as trustees.

In other resolutions on the final day of their annual convention, trustees also:

Urged the province to tax owners of mobile homes and trailers for school costs; Called for payment of $1,100 to Kelowna school board toward costs of a Supreme Court action undertaken by the district in connection with a teachers' salary arbitration;

AID ADVOCATED

Urged the B.C. government to provide assistance in scholarships for students to complete masters and doctors degrees in education;

Urged, with Vancouver school board recording a negative vote, that permanent teacher appointments be subject to review every three years;

MORE AUTONOMY

Asked the provincial government to allow larger districts more autonomy in deciding courses of study and selecting textbooks and supplementary readers.

Wirtz Blames Canada

But Meany Raps Norris in Trustee Deadlock

U.S. Labor Shocks MacEachen

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister MacEachen said last night that he is "absolutely shocked" that the AFL-CIO in the United States is backing the Seafarers' International Union of Canada as a free trade union.

Mr. MacEachen was commenting on an appeal by AFL-CIO President George Meany to "all AFL-CIO affiliates" to support the SIU in its fight against the Canadian government's proposed trusteeship.

The minister also rebuked U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz for placing the blame on the Canadian Labor Congress for the collapse of trusteeship talks.

WASHINGTON (CP)—Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz said Thursday Canadian-U.S. negotiations to establish a private three-man trusteeship over the Seafarers International Union of Canada collapsed because of a demand by the Canadian Labor Congress that two of the three trustees be Canadians.

However, George Meany, president of the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations, indicated in a statement that deeper issues are involved, including the question of what powers the trusteeship would have to remove Harold C. Banks from the Canadian SIU leadership.

Charging that the Norris royal commission was nothing more than a vehicle "for a vitriolic and vengeful attack on the SIU of Canada," Meany indicated he would not be party to the ouster of Banks unless it could be proven that Banks had committed a crime or other statutory offence or breached the AFL-CIO code of ethics.

Meany said this one-man commission made demands for legislation that would place the Canadian SIU "under the most sweeping and direct government controls ever undertaken on the North American continent."

Inertia Hit By John D

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition leader Diefenbaker charged in the Commons Thursday that government "inertia" in not imposing a trusteeship over maritime unions last summer contributed to the present longshoremen's strike in Quebec ports.

He also accused State Secretary Pickersgill of having "so little" for Hal C. Banks, head of the SIU.

Mr. Pickersgill said that was "a downright falsehood."

Jodoin Raps Wirtz Stand

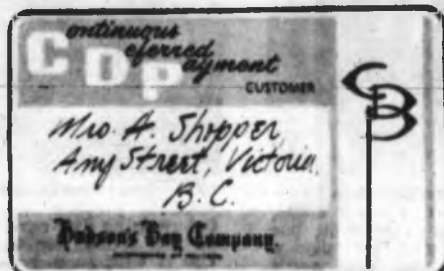

OTTAWA (CP)—President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress Thursday night described as "a little presumptuous" statements made by U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz about Canada's maritime crisis.

He also said his counterpart in American Labor, George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, is misinformed on the Canadian situation.

Mr. Jodoin was commenting on a statement by Mr. Wirtz that Canada-U.S. negotiations for a union trusteeship collapsed because the CLC insisted on two Canadian trustees and one American.

"What's wrong with that?" Mr. Jodoin asked. "It is a matter that comes under Canadian law."

Court Parade

Driver Fined, Barred

A man who skidded 65 feet, tore out a 24-inch thick power pole, then skidded another 75 feet in his car on the Patricia Bay Highway, was found guilty of dangerous driving in Saanich Magistrate's court yesterday.

Harold Waddell, of HMCS Skeena, was found lying in a field about 40 feet from the road after the accident, which occurred Sept. 28. He was not seriously injured.

Waddell said he lost control of the car after he swerved to miss a dog on the slippery road, according to police evidence.

He was fined $100 and his driver's licence was suspended.

A man who drove at speeds of up to 80 miles an hour on Douglas Street near Tolmie Sept. 21, was fined $75 in Saanich Magistrate's court yesterday, for dangerous driving. His licence was also suspended.

Court was told James Ryan, of Duncan, was seen driving beside another car when he passed two Saanich policemen at Douglas and Tolmie.

Police said Ryan's car turned onto Sannich Road, drove through the Town and Country parking lot, and headed for the Trans-Canada Highway before it was stopped by police.

Ryan said he speeded up because the other car would not permit him to change lanes so he could get onto the Trans-Canada Highway.

A man pleaded guilty in Saanich Magistrate's court yesterday to contributing to juvenile delinquency after he indecently exposed himself to two teen-aged girls on Tuesday, and grabbed one of the girls.

Winston Roberts, 422 Simcoe, said he was just killing time when the incident occurred, at Interurban and Grange Roads. He said he had had about three glasses of beer, and decided he would try to scare the girls.

Magistrate William Oetler remanded Roberts to Oct. 17 for sentence.

Lumber Edge Claimed

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—Boise Cascade Corp. reports a proposed new standard for engineered lumber gives western producers a competitive advantage over Canadian producers because it brings lower freight costs.

Boise Cascade shipped the first carload of framing lumber manufactured to specifications included in the new standards, reporting savings of $3 per 1,000 feet on the 41,500 board feet.

The lumber was shipped from the firm's mill at Emmett to Atlanta, Ga. The new standard provides a thickness of 1 1/2 inches with a 13 per cent moisture content. The old standard was 1 1/2 inches with no moisture factor.

12 Bodies Found In Copter Crash

I'll Renounce Title Says Contender

BLACKPOOL, England (Reuters)—Lord Hailsham, one of the three contenders for the prime ministership, announced here Thursday night that he intends to renounce his title.

Hailsham's resignation meant he would be able to run for a seat in the House of Commons which is necessary if he is to be considered for the leadership of the Conservative Party.

Hailsham Will Be Tory Choice

By E. D. WARD HARRIS

Who will succeed Macmillan as Britain's prime minister? My guess is that it will be the ebullient Lord Hailsham.

After a bitter behind-the-scenes battle between the supporters of Deputy Prime Minister R. A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald Maudling and Science Minister Lord Hailsham, the latter will be chosen.

As is customary in British Conservative Party circles, the ranks will close behind the new leader.

Note that I have said that the new leader will be "chosen," not elected.

Unique

This, too, is a unique Party device. The Tory Establishment of the day has always chosen the leader and the rank and file has always been expected to accept the choice.

Whether they liked it or not, they always have accepted because with the Tories, party unity is paramount. On this occasion there is an intriguing difference from any previous leadership decision. Whether Macmillan was compelled to have his operation at this time, or whether he deliberately chose to do so, it happens that for the first time a new party leader has to be found while the Establishment and the rank and file are in conference.

The rank and file—the constituency groups—may decide a say in the decision, and with the Press looking over its shoulder, the Establishment, one would think, would have to give ground.

Chords Lost Again

ENBORNE, England (AP)—For the second time in a month someone has silenced the organ in the church in this Berkshire village by stealing some of the organ's pipes.

Who would steal them? "The answer is obvious," said Rev. Peter Talbot. "It must be someone trying to build an organ of his own."

LONDON (CP)—Ailing Harold Macmillan is stepping down as Britain's prime minister.

The "unflappable Mac," who took over the government in the wake of the Suez crisis, then led his Conservative party to victory in 1959 elections, made public his decision Thursday. He said he will not be well enough to lead the party into battle next year or to fulfill the tasks of prime minister for any lengthy period.

LONG CONVALESCENCE

He underwent a successful operation here Thursday for removal of his prostate gland. A long period of convalescence lies ahead. He is 69 and has been prime minister since Jan. 10, 1957.

He left it indefinite when he will resign as prime minister, but this will be after the party names a new leader.

QUEEN INFORMED

After nearly seven years in office, Macmillan's decision came at a low point in his career. Buffeted by the Profumo affair and other national crises, he had been

Trip Succeeds Victim Wakes

OLDHAM, England (Reuters)—Mrs. Mary Holden, a 59-year-old English widow severely injured in a car crash in Victoria, regained consciousness here Thursday—three months after the accident.

She was flown across the Atlantic in a deep coma and was admitted to hospital here two weeks ago.

Mrs. Holden was vacationing in British Columbia when a car in which she was a passenger was involved in an accident. Nine weeks later doctors in Victoria decided she might regain consciousness more quickly if the voices of her relatives and friends in Oldham could penetrate her coma.

Thursday a hospital spokesman said Mrs. Holden was now "fully conscious" and "apparently able to understand fully what is going on around her."

Congress Votes to Bar Moon Shot with Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives voted Thursday to ban U.S. cooperation with any Communist country in exploration of the moon.

It wrote the ban into the

B.C. Man Owes Millions

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States government obtained a judgment for more than $13,000,000 in federal district court Thursday against Albert A. McLennan, a retired Canadian distillery executive, for back income taxes.

Federal officials said they believed the judgment was the largest ever obtained by the U.S. government in New York State.

U.S. Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau said the judgment was obtained by default against McLennan, 78, of Cleveland, B.C., a fugitive since 1954.

The judgment, covering unpaid income taxes, penalties and interest, accruing from taxes due on liquor sales in New York State during the Second World War, totalled $13,257,861, Morgenthau said.

Dam Disaster

Bodies Litter River

BELLUNO, Italy (AP)—Thousands of relief workers toiled to recover the dead and succor survivors of the Vajont reservoir disaster, which Italians estimated killed 3,000 persons. Italy was a nation in mourning.

Scientists suspected an earthquake loosed the avalanche that dropped like a rock from Mount Tovo into the deep, four-mile-long reservoir Wednesday night and cascaded millions of tons of water over the Vajont hydro-electric dam onto a sleeping countryside.

FLATTENED VILLAGES

Flattened villages dotted the valleys of the lower Vajont and upper Piave rivers below the dam, a reinforced concrete, 873-foot-tall structure that is the third highest dam in the world.

The disaster was in the Alps of northern Italy. An earthquake was recorded in the area at 10:53 p.m. Wednesday.

HAMLETS SWALLOWED

Witnesses said the water first splashed about 200 yards up the mountainside and swallowed two hamlets, then roared southward over the dam and down the valleys toward the Adriatic Sea, sweeping away whole villages, farms, roads and railway tracks.

Bodies of villagers and animals lay half buried in mid along the banks of the Piave. Dozens of bodies floated downstream on the 12-foot crest of the flood. Several were recovered as far as 36 miles downstream.

American troops and airmen joined 10,000 Italian soldiers, police, firemen and Red Cross workers in the relief operations and a move to avert a new calamity—the helicopter transfer of isolated villagers from the area of Mount Tovo threatened by another avalanche.

The monster dam withstood the onslaught of mud and water. Only an upper owner was ripped away, apparently by the landslide.

Round of Gaiety

Passengers Living It Up

QUEBEC (CP)—An Alberta girl says the liner Empress of Canada is treating its strikebound passengers like royalty.

Jean Johnson of High River, Alta., said Thursday

tailed from the moment they get up until after dark with games, dances, movies and other activity.

"They're going all out to keep us happy," she said in a ship-to-shore interview. Passengers are being enter-

"The only thing is we're not getting any newspapers." The ship has been anchored off nearby Ile D'Orleans since Tuesday as a result of the longshoremen's strike, which prevents the vessel from landing passengers.

Miss Johnson said the passengers have kept up to date on the strike by listening to the radio. Although they had no idea when the vessel would move, morale was high.

"On the whole, people are accepting it very well."

Empress Nears Deadline

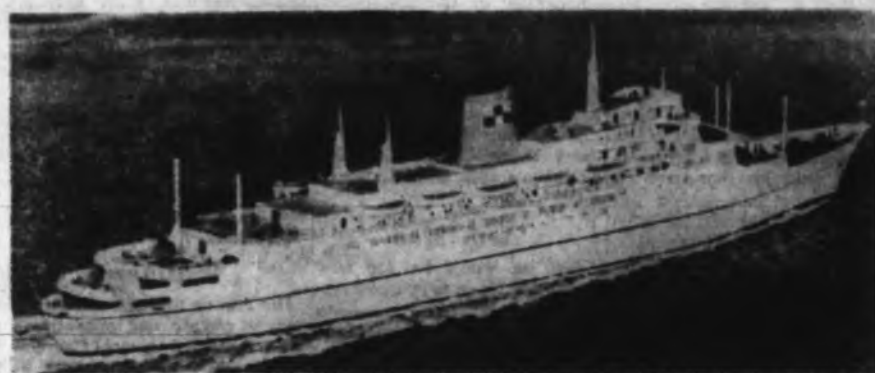

QUEBEC (CP)—The Empress of Canada, rebuffed from discharging her passengers here by the St. Lawrence River dock strike, was prevented Thursday night from making a run for Montreal where a court order has restricted the activities of strikers.

The transport department's signal service here said the striking longshoremen stopped a pilot from boarding the 27,000-ton vessel, and the skipper of the liner apparently decided against attempting the trip at night without an experienced guide.

A spokesman for the signal service said the service was told the liner would return to an anchorage off the Island of Orleans.

Plans for the trip to Montreal called for the liner—commanded by Capt. W. S. (Bill) Main, skipper of a British Navy submarine in the Second World War—to pick up a pilot while travelling at reduced speed past the Lewis ferry dock.

Williams said the ship stopped and then turned around. A CPR spokesman said the Empress' deadline for attempting to dock is today and the ship may have to return to England or leave her passengers off at some other port.

WE'LL STEP IN SAYS OTTAWA

MONTREAL—Negotiators, racing against time to head off possible federal intervention, huddled Thursday in a last-ditch effort to settle voluntarily the week-old St. Lawrence dock strike which has virtually paralyzed wheat shipments to Russia.

The top man of the longshoremen's union sat in for the first time.

The talks were well under way when an injunction granted by Quebec Superior Court in Montreal prohibited picketing on or about Montreal Harbor property, banned large gatherings of members of unions there and prohibited intimidation of members of other unions and of harbor cities.

WEEK-OLD

These developments came after Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson warned that his government is prepared to do "whatever necessary" to halt the week-old walkout.

Montreal Judge Rene Lippe, federal mediator in the bitter dispute, went into session at mid-afternoon with negotiators for the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) and the Shipping Federation of Canada (SFC).

The ILA's international president, Teddy Gleason of New York, entered the meeting in the downtown Montreal hotel saying he is determined "to do all I can to settle this thing."

He said he felt the longshoremen are confused about the issues and cannot understand why talks have gone on so long.

Some Wheat Moves

MONTREAL (CP)—A survey disclosed Thursday that some wheat is moving down the St. Lawrence River and overseas to Russia from Bale Comeau and Sorel, two ports not directly affected by the longshoremen's strike which has brought the harbors of Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec to a standstill.

An official at Bale Comeau, 220 miles northeast of Quebec, said there is no union at the port and operations have been continuing normally.

A similar situation existed in Sorel, 45 miles downriver from Montreal, where the longshoremen are members of an affiliate of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Cloud Cast on Every Officer, Says MP

OTTAWA (CP)—John Lloyd (L.-Halifax) Thursday accused retired Commodore James Plomer of casting a cloud over the reputation of every officer in the Royal Canadian Navy.

Commodore Plomer, a committee witness for 3½ hours, said he is willing to cite "case after case" to substantiate his charges, but that he would do this only "in confidence."

"I am not here to destroy people's characters," he said. He would be willing to name names in a closed session of the committee.

Donald MacLennan (PC-Cape Breton South) asked Commodore Plomer whether he was saying in effect: "It is who you know, not what you know" in the navy.

Commodore Plomer agreed, saying "for the sake of people's standards are far below those of other NATO navies. Testifying to the Commons defence committee Thursday, he described case after case of deterioration of

Lions Place Salt Spring On Roller Skate Wheels

FULFORD—Roller skates are being bought by the Salt Spring Lions Club for use in the Fulford Hall's second season of skating sessions which began Oct. 5.

Skating was so popular last year, with all ages wanting to get in on the fun, that the Lions decided to buy equipment instead of borrowing it.

New Building at Nanaimo

Courses in Full Swing At Vocational Centre

NANAIMO—All courses are now in full swing at the new $800,000 B.C. Vocational School building here, according to Principal J. R. Hurdle.

Departments have been moving in since Sept. 1, starting with the school of cookery.

CAPACITY DOUBLED
The new building has increased the capacity of the school to about 750. Present enrolment is 390, mostly in industrial courses.

mercial, secretarial, typing and beauty culture.

From the day they moved into the new kitchens and cafeteria, the school of cookery students have prepared and served 400 meals a day and coffee for two coffee breaks.

Keeping an eagle eye on the student cooks are instructor John Bateman and assistant Mel Thomas. Mr. Bateman trained with the CNR, was chef at the Tally-Ho at the time of his appointment. Mr. Thomas learned his trade at the Vancouver Vocational Institute, later worked on the DEW Line.

TOP QUALITY

All meals must be of top quality and professional standard to satisfy the appetites of vocational students who, unlike purely academic students, spend much of their day doing hard physical work.

There are nine students with room for nine more. Eventually there will be a senior and junior class of nine each. The course takes 11 months and when a student graduates he is a fully-qualified cook with a diploma. He may then take a job which could enable him to become a chef after about five years.

BEST EQUIPMENT

The kitchens and the restaurant are the most up-to-date possible, with more and better equipment than a large modern restaurant would need. A two-week supply of perishables is kept in a walk-in deep-freeze in case of buying emergencies. All dish-washing is automatic and sterile. And there are labor-saving gadgets that a housewife never heard of.

Every phase of preparing food is taught.

ADMINISTRATION, TOO

Equally important is the administrative side of cooking—buying, maintenance of equipment, menu planning, portioning and cost control.

Menus are on the rotation system. There are 21 daily menus at present, so that today's meals won't be repeated for another three weeks.

dent body. What's more, the price is right.

Meal tickets for three meals a day work out at about $2.

Detroit Official Says

Mafia Crime Boss In Ontario City

WASHINGTON (CP)—Police Commissioner George Edwards of Detroit testified Thursday that a Mafia mob operates in his auto city and that at least three Mafia lieutenants controlled narcotics and other rackets in Windsor, Ont.

As the Senate investigations subcommittee switched its attention to organized crime in the U.S.-Canada border area, another police official charged that one of the Windsor Mafia lieutenants tried to dispose of $100,000 worth of counterfeit bills to a federal agent.

Named by the commissioner as having operated in Windsor are: Onofrio (Nono) Minsudo, Nicolas (Nick) Cicchini and Joe Cock-eyed Joe Catalano. Witnesses said Cock-eyed Joe is in hiding and Cicchini is in Kingston, Ont., penitentiary on a narcotics charge.

Edwards said the Detroit outfit, ruled by a five-man kingpin council known as "the dons," is connected with what mobster informant Joseph Valachi has called Cosa Nostra, a reported U.S. wide crime syndicate whose operations extend into Canada.

$125,000 IN YEAR

"They pay no attention to international boundaries," Edwards said as he outlined the 66-man organization of the Detroit-based Mafia which, he estimated, hauls in about $150,000 a year through the rackets and other criminal activities.

At one time the U.S. government booted Catalano out of the U.S., Edwards said, but he got into Canada via Cuba on a visa.

BOUGHT BY CANADA

Inspector Earl C. Miller of the Detroit Criminal Intelligence Bureau said he understands the Canadian police are searching for Cock-eyed Joe but the hoodlum has disappeared from his usual haunts.

In a document presented to the subcommittee in the form of a chart, Edwards said Catalano has a history of operations in gambling, bootlegging, burglary, robbery, larceny as well as extortion, mayhem and murders.

LONG RECORD

He testified in his document that Minsudo has been linked with labor racketeering, coin machine racketeering, bootlegging, burglary, robbery and larceny.

Cicchini was described as having being active in burglary, robbery and larceny, counterfeiting and extortion, mayhem and murders.

The Windsor Star said Thursday that Minsudo is the only one of the three men named by Edwards still in the border city.

Bali Volcano Erupts Again

Business Courses To Begin

DUNCAN — The Cowichan School District Adult Education course in small business management, scheduled to start soon, has been endorsed by senior and junior Chambers of Commerce, according to senior president Dennis Hurley.

Mr. Hurley, who recently attended a Vancouver workshop on this course, will be the first instructor here.

TWO-YEAR PLAN

He said it is not a course to be taught for a certain time only but might stretch over a period of two years.

"This is not just another night school class," Mr. Hurley said. "It is aimed at the businessmen in this area who are the backbone of our community. The sessions will be held in congenial surroundings, with as little school room atmosphere as possible."

OTTAWA PLAN

The new training program was planned by the department of trade and industry at Ottawa following the annual failure of 25 per cent of 400,000 small businesses in Canada.

He said the course is "ready to roll here" and eventually several groups with different instructors may be formed, as each one should have not more than eight participants.

"We expect the number to climb well over the 700 mark during the first week of classes."

An additional 100 registrations were expected for Alberni Valley Institute lectures which start Oct. 15. Sixty persons already have signed up for the series.

Mr. Kulich reported that seven night classes have been filled. No additional members will be accepted for elementary dressmaking (Thursday), advanced dressmaking, pottery, shorthand, candle making, flower arranging and bookkeeping.

On the other hand chemistry 91, French 91 and English 10-20 have been cancelled due to insufficient registration.

Registrations will be received during the first and second weeks of the classes for all of the remaining courses.

Mr. Kulich pointed out that there are still more than 50 courses from which to choose, although some of the courses have only two or three vacancies.

The appointment followed a civil service commission competition. Mr. McLeod will succeed R. G. McIndoe, recently transferred from Prince Rupert to a similar post in Nanaimo.

Mr. MacLeod, a native of Victoria, served with the RCN during the Second World War. Now senior officer in his district, he will be responsible for the coastal area from Cape Caution north to the Alaskan border including the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Nanaimo Launches Winter Work Drive

NANAIMO—"When everyone works everyone benefits" is the slogan of the Nanaimo winter employment committee which held its first meeting this week.

Members reported great interest was being shown in the municipal works incentive program and the winter home building incentive program.

Island's J. R. MacLeod Appointed To Prince Rupert Fisheries Post

VANCOUVER — Appointment of J. R. MacLeod as district supervisor of fisheries at Prince Rupert was announced yesterday by W. R. Hourston, fisheries department Pacific director yesterday.

The appointment followed a civil service commission competition. Mr. McLeod will succeed R. G. McIndoe, recently transferred from Prince Rupert to a similar post in Nanaimo.

Mr. MacLeod joined the department in 1956 after several years as a successful commercial fisherman. He has been fishery officer at Alert Bay, Kyuquot and Rivers Inlet, with more recent service as assistant district supervisor at Prince Rupert.

U.S. Bills a Worry

B.C. Forest Industry Vows: Let's Co-operate, Not Fight

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's forest industry, worried about more than 50 bills introduced in the United States Congress this year, has told American producers it would rather co-operate than fight.

At the same time it is attempting to bring about defeat of the bills which would limit the sales of Canadian—primarily B.C.—produced lumber in the U.S.

The Council of Forest Industries of B.C. has sent between 2,000 and 3,000 fact-laden pamphlets, printed on behalf of the entire B.C. industry, to congressmen, senators, lumber producers, newspapers and columnists in the Washington, D.C., area, home builders and retail lumber companies.

It says Canadian imports

make up only 14.6 per cent of the U.S. consumption and are not the cause of any trouble in the American industry. It quotes heavily from the report of the U.S. Tariff Commission in February which rejected a domestic industry request for restrictions.

It says industry problems are common on both sides of the border and cannot be solved by a "costly and self-destructive effort" to restrict Canadian imports.

COMMON PROBLEMS

The common problems were the growing variety of cheaper substitutes to lumber and the constant need to modernize equipment and production methods.

... What is called for is a massive constructive and cooperative effort to increase consumer acceptance of lumber as a building material, not only in the U.S. and Canada, but in many potential export markets abroad.

"In such an effort, Canadian producers can be counted upon as eager partners."

A council spokesman said Thursday the Canadian industry is making contributions to the national wood promotion program in the U.S. which is attempting to combat the growing use of such products as steel and aluminum in house construction.

Canadian imports resulted in lower housing costs, made it possible for the U.S. industry to concentrate on higher-profit products such as plywood and helped Canada be the No. 1 customer of U.S. industry.

People Will Pour Into Saanich

By JACK FRY

A major population explosion is expected in Saanich within a few years as available land in Oak Bay and Esquimalt disappears and heavy suburban development rolls northward from Greater Victoria.

The northward movement will be absorbed in a large triangular chunk of Saanich stretching from Ten Mile

Point and Cordova Bay to the Wilkeson and Burnside Roads intersection.

"A boom will occur in this part of Saanich," municipal planner Antony Parr predicted yesterday.

By 1976, Saanich will be getting 61.62 per cent of Greater Victoria's population increase, while increases elsewhere will be only 19 per cent in Victoria, 10 per cent in Oak Bay, five per cent in Esquimalt and 1.38 per cent in View Royal, he said.

There will be a tremendous demand for all types of services including schools, stores, roads, sidewalks and street lighting as young families with children move into the area.

By 1981, the present population of 16,495 in the triangle will have been tripled to 45,985 and in addition to the 61 stores there now some 32 acres of land will have to be rezoned for commercial use to satisfy the needs of the populace.

In an effort to cope with some of the anticipated problems, the municipal planning department prepared a commercial development study forecasting the future commercial needs of the area.

This report, now in the hands of Saanich councillors, will serve as a guide during the next few years when day-to-day rezoning applications come before council.

Mr. Parr said he also hopes that council at the appropriate time will rezone land for commercial use ahead of actual development in the area.

The commercial development study, projected to 1981, predicts where shopping centres up to 15 acres in size, neighborhood commercial areas up to five acres in size and 1 to 1½-acre corner stores may be needed.

"We are subject to rezoning applications from time to time for all sorts of odd spots throughout the municipality and the main purpose of this report is to forecast what the needs will really be," said the planner.

The large, undeveloped western portion of the municipality, meanwhile, probably will be bypassed for many years as the steamroller of suburban development rolls north through Cordova Bay into Central Saanich.

Lumber

Nanaimo Port Pushed To the Limit

NANAIMO—Harbor facilities are being pushed to the limit with 10 ships arriving in 10 days this month and lumber shipments up more than 2,000,000 board feet with 2½ months to go.

Requests for essential additions to Nanaimo harbor facilities were sent to Victoria by the annual meeting of the Canadian Port and Harbor Association last month.

A new dock is being built near Harmae mill by Hooker Chemicals Ltd.

PLEASURE BOATS

Nanaimo's commercial fishermen are concerned about lack of adequate mooring space and the encroachments of pleasure boats on the already overcrowded wharves.

The Pacific Trollers Association, Nanaimo, have formed a committee to get a better deal for local fishermen. The committee—Henry Vollmers, Don Stevenson and W. H. Taylor—feel that the Commercial Inlet floats belong to commercial fishermen and object to the floats being used by pleasure boats in the winter time.

"Six years ago," Mr. Stevenson said, "we started a move to get the Millstream boat basin development under way but they have done nothing. We're thoroughly dissatisfied. It is only fair that we have a voice in the development of our harbor but so far we have been ignored."

QUALICUM BEACH—A $307,000 school building referendum will be put to taxpayers in Qualicum School District some time in November.

BOND ISSUE

Half of the estimated figure would be paid by the provincial government, the balance by a 20-year bond issue with annual payments of approximately $12,000 including interest.

School population in the district has increased from 1,003 pupils in 1958 to 1,251 at the September, 1963, enrollment. Studies indicate this growth will be accelerated in the next three years. Present accommodations are taxed to the utmost, and in some cases, facilities are sub-standard.

CHART REPORT

Another consideration which necessitates the referendum is the recommendation of the Chant Royal Commission on Education that retention of Grade 7 pupils in elementary schools be implemented. To date this has not been possible, with the exception of Nanosee.

$5,000 Swells Total

The Greater Victoria United Appeal total, swelled by $5,000 yesterday, has reached 18.3 per cent of the 1963 goal of $260,000.

The firm and business district canvass is continuing this week and has been "pretty good" according to appeal officials.

The residential canvass begins Tuesday.

Put a Little Aside

Although Greater Victoria's United Appeal target of $400,000 this year is 15 per cent higher than in 1962, it is still considerably less than goals for other Canadian cities of comparable size.

Figures for this year's campaign are not yet available from other cities, but a comparison of 1962 appeals shows Victoria well behind other centres.

Victoria's approximately 140,000 residents last year gave $348,213—97 per cent of the goal.

This figure represents an average of $4.53. Greater Victorians gave $2.49 each.

There are reasons for Victoria's showing, of course—or excuses.

LITTLE TO SPARE

Part of the reason is the high percentage of elderly or retired people on fixed incomes. These persons have little to spare.

Ironically, this type of person may derive the most benefit of member agencies. These agencies desperately need more funds.

LITTLE INDUSTRY

Another factor in Victoria's lower contributions is the relative lack of major industry with year-round payrolls and higher employment.

But are these reasons enough? Campaign officials—privately—say no. They seldom scold publicly residents for what they consider a poor attitude.

They have learned from bitter experience this can result in a negative attitude. It irritates people.

Officials avoid saying what many of them believe. Briefly, and generally: Most people just don't care.

GIVE MORE

They might be affected by some of the promotion and publicity during the drive for funds each fall. They might even promise themselves to give a little more this time.

But probably at that moment the heart is touched the canvasser hasn't arrived. And few people are so filled with compassion they will rush out looking for someplace to give.

This isn't necessary. Simply put it aside now, for when the canvasser calls, and add a little to it every time you can spare it. Consider it an investment in your community.

He was released from St. Joseph's Hospital after treatment.

To 'Shoot Down' Gulls

Falcons on Guard!

An unusual experiment aimed at preventing collisions of birds and aircraft will soon be made by a Saanich falconer hired by the National Research Council of Canada.

Frank Beebe, 660 Goyette Road, has spent the past six weeks training four peregrine falcons to attack seagulls and will put the birds through their paces at an airport as soon as an okay is received from Ottawa.

It is believed the falcons will attack a few gulls and frighten away large flocks, thus preventing possible air accidents or damage to aircraft engines, he said.

The 43-year-old falconer, who is a technician at the provincial museum, was given two months' leave of absence from his work to train the birds which are owned by the National Research Council.

"We are pioneering. We don't know just how it's going to work and we will play it by ear," he said yesterday.

The theory is that two pairs of falcons will maintain a dawn to dusk vigil at an airport, one pair in the morning and another in the afternoon.

Only one falcon will fly at a time unless a flock of seagulls start to mob, at which time the second bird will be released to break it up, Mr. Beebe said.

If the experiment is successful, "it presumably eventually would involve the training of falconers as well as falcons."

Mr. Beebe, who is director for Canada of the North American Falconers' Association, is working on this project under a contract issued by the Canadian Wildlife Service—a member group of the Council's Associate Committee on Aircraft Engine Bird Strikes.

Duncan Youth Remanded

DUNCAN—A 17-year-old youth charged with manslaughter in the death of 14-year-old Hugh George Nesbitt at Maple Bay in August was remanded to Nias 18 when he appeared in Duncan magistrate's court yesterday.

Defence lawyer Angelo Branca is appealing a decision of Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton of the B.C. Supreme Court to elevate the charge from juvenile court. Duncan lawyer Thomas Lines appeared for Mr. Branca yesterday.

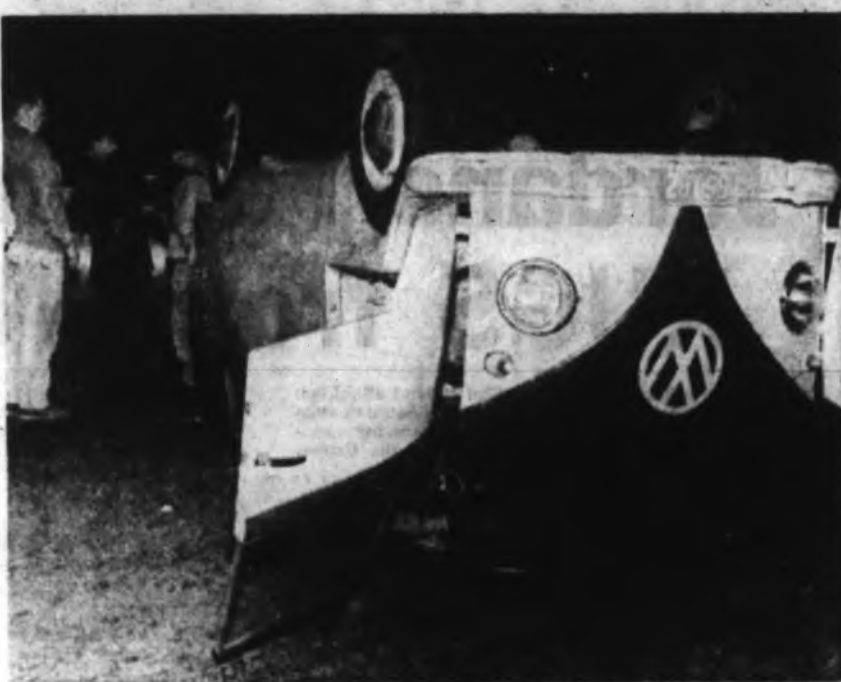

Several weeks ago Mr. Branca objected to the crown's request to have the juvenile raised into adult court and Magistrate Anderson agreed with the defence. The crown appealed the decision and Mr. Justice Wootton ruled the juvenile should be raised into adult court.

Previously Mr. Branca entered a plea of not guilty to all three charges on behalf of his client.

Ferryman Absent

NANAIMO—Two last-minute attempts to get B.C. Government ferry employees into the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway and Transport Workers failed Wednesday when no ferryman turned up at two meetings held during the day and evening.

The ferry workers recently decided to enroll in the B.C. Government Employees Association with all the crew from captains to deckhands as members of the union.

Still in There Wrecking

Even in its dying hours Fountain Circle still claims traffic accidents. Van driver Bernard Woolley, 2980 Inlet, is interviewed by Const. Dave Glancy while his passenger, Dicco

Pasquale, 585 John Street, right, looks on. Police said the van was struck in the rear by a car driven by Jerry Max Hammontree, 11806 97th Street, Kirkland, Wash.

Forest Week

Lights to Shine

A string of lights proclaiming National Forest Products Week will be hung over the Causeway from Oct. 20 to 25.

B.C.'s huge forest industry will join in the cross-Canada observance and in Victoria a number of retail lumber firms will be trying to recapture a national award taken by a city firm last year.

Doman's Lumber Co. Ltd. won the award last year for a home-owners' exhibition in its Bay Street store, featuring building supply display booths in conjunction with a sale on building materials.

W. B. Hemmingsen, manager of Sooke Forest Products Ltd., is chairman for National Forest

New symbol for contribution of forest products industry to B.C.'s economy is this emblem drawn up in connection with Canadian-wide National Forest Products Week, Oct. 20 to 25. Theme of half a silver dollar and half a tree suggests that half of every dollar in B.C. comes from forest industry.

Products Week activities in the Victoria area, this year.

It is hoped that a portable space-tree can be rigged at a central location for people to see and that a display can be arranged in the downtown area, he said yesterday.

The forest products industry will distribute 30,000 car bumper stickers to its employees, and some plants and mills may open their doors for special tours by the public during the week.

Theme of the promotion will be "Half Your Dollars from Forest Products," to stress the importance of the forest industry to B.C.'s economy.

Nearly half of the province's income comes from lumber, newsprint, pulp, plywood and other forest industry products.

In Underworld

Stolen Drugs Worth Plenty

A quantity of drugs which could be worth thousands of dollars in the underworld market were stolen from a storage cabinet at the McGill and Orme drug store, 1105 Pandora, overnight Wednesday.

Police said thieves broke a window on the north side of the pharmacy, located in the Medical Arts Building, to gain entry. They then pried open a drawer in the heavy, locked storage cabinet and took the drugs.

Stolen were 14 ounces of opium, 175 ampules of morphine, 500 morphine tablets, two ounces of codeine powder, 300 cubic centimetres of demerol and 200 dilaudid tablets.

The theft was discovered at about 8 a.m. Thursday when a caretaker found the broken window and noticed that several drawers in the store had been ransacked.

NO MONEY

Store manager Frank Boughie said no money had been taken, and the legitimate value of the drugs had not yet been determined.

Queries About Appeal?

Any questions about the Victoria United Appeal?

Starting Tuesday, they can be answered, right on the street in the downtown area at the information booth at Yates and Douglas.

The booth, staffed by members of various appeal agencies, will be open six days each week until Oct. 31.

Any questions regarding the organization or individual agencies in the appeal will be answered. Donations can also be made at the booth.

Council

Oppose Pension—McLean

Ald. J. L. W. McLean yesterday urged city council to fight the proposed Canada pension plan on grounds that the added cost will cripple the economy.

There was "no political bias" in his remarks, Ald. McLean said. He raised the subject because it was of direct concern to city council.

"We are directly affected in the city because we employ between 650 and 700, and even at the initial rate of 2 per cent on a payroll of approximately $1,000,000 this will mean some $60,000 goes into the plan," he said.

NO SUPPORT

Two surveys by previous governments indicated that the economy of the country could not support such a pension scheme, Ald. McLean said.

By 1975, he estimated, the taxbill will have "multiplied three to four times" if the new pension plan was piled on top of the present $75-a-month old age pension.

Ald. Lily Wilson, chairman of the city's welfare committee, said she is worried about the effect the proposed pension plan may have on those living close to the line dividing welfare recipients from those who support themselves.

The council decided to ask Ottawa for more details of the scheme, and authorized the finance committee to study the question and make its recommendations to council.

Macmillan to Quit As Prime Minister

I'll Renounce Title Says Contender

BLACKPOOL, England (Reuters)—Lord Hailsham, one of the three contenders for the prime ministership, announced here Thursday night that he intends to renounce his title.

Hailsham's resignation meant he would be able to run for a seat in the House of Commons which is necessary if he is to be considered for the leadership of the Conservative Party.

Hailsham Will Be Tory Choice

By E. D. WARD HARRIS

Who will succeed Macmillan as Britain's prime minister? My guess is that it will be the brilliant Lord Hailsham.

After a bitter behind-the-scenes battle between the supporters of Deputy Prime Minister R. A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald Maudling and Science Minister Lord Hailsham, the latter will be chosen.

As is customary in British Conservative Party circles, the ranks will close behind the new leader.

Note that I have said that the new leader will be "chosen," not elected.

Unique

This, too, is a unique Party device. The Tory Establishment of the day has always chosen the leader, and the rank and file has always been expected to accept the choice.

Whether they liked it or not, they always have accepted because with the Tories, party unity is paramount.

On this occasion there is an intriguing difference from any previous leadership decision. Whether Macmillan was compelled to have his operation at this time, or whether he deliberately chose to do so, it happens that for the first time a new party leader has to be found while the Establishment and the rank and file are in conference.

Demand

The rank and file—the constituency groups—may demand a say in the decision, and with the Press looking over its shoulder, the Establishment, one would think, would have to give ground.

It is an interesting speculation, but it won't occur. Tradition dies hard in a traditional diehard party.

Chords Lost Again

ENBORNE, England (AP)—For the second time in a month someone has silenced the organ in the church in this Berkshire village by stealing some of the organ's pipes.

Who would steal them? "The answer is obvious," said Rev. Peter Talbot, "it must be someone trying to build an organ of his own."

LONDON (CP)—Ailing Harold Macmillan is stepping down as Britain's prime minister.

The "unflappable Mac," who took over the government in the wake of the Suez crisis, then led his Conservative party to victory in 1959 elections, made public his decision Thursday. He said he will not be well enough to lead the party into battle next year or to fulfill the tasks of prime minister for any long period.

He underwent a successful operation here Thursday for removal of his prostate gland. A long period of convalescence lies ahead. He is 69 and has been prime minister since Jan. 19, 1957.

He left it indefinite when he will resign as prime minister, but this will be after the party names a new leader.

Macmillan's announcement in a letter to the party was disclosed a few hours after he left the operating table. After saying he would not be well enough to lead the Tories into battle at next year's election, Macmillan added: "Nor could I hope to fulfill the tasks of prime minister for any extended period. I have so informed the Queen."

After nearly seven years in office, Macmillan's decision came at a low point in his career. Buffeted by the Profumo affair and other national crises,

Trip Succeeds Victim Wakes

OLDHAM, England (Reuters)—Mrs. Mary Holden, a 58-year-old English widow severely injured in a car crash in Victoria, regained consciousness here Thursday—three months after the accident.

She was flown across the Atlantic in a deep coma and was admitted to hospital here two weeks ago.

Mrs. Holden was vacationing in British Columbia when a car in which she was a passenger was involved in an accident. Nine weeks later doctors in Victoria decided she might regain consciousness more quickly if the voices of her relatives and friends in Oldham could penetrate her coma.

Thursday a hospital spokesman said Mrs. Holden was now "fully conscious" and "apparently able to understand fully what is going on around her."

Congress Votes to Bar Moon Shot with Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives voted Thursday to ban U.S. cooperation with any Communist country in exploration of the moon.

It wrote the ban into the 1964 U.S. space agency's appropriation bill by a standing vote of 125 to 110. It was proposed by Representative Thomas M. Pelly (Rep. Wash.) and backed heavily by Republicans and southern Democrats.

B.C. Man Owes Millions

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States government obtained a judgment for more than $15,000,000 in federal district court Thursday against Albert A. McLennan, a retired Canadian distillery executive, for back income taxes.

Federal officials said they believed the judgment was the largest ever obtained by the U.S. government in New York State.

U.S. Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau said the judgment was obtained by default against McLennan, 78, of Cloverdale, B.C., a fugitive since 1954.

The judgment, covering unpaid income taxes, penalties and interest accruing from taxes due on liquor sales in New York State during the Second World War, totalled $15,387,861, Morgenthau said.

Dam Disaster

Bodies Litter River

BELLUNO, Italy (AP)—Thousands of relief workers toiled to recover the dead and succor survivors of the Valont reservoir disaster, which Italians estimated killed 3,000 persons. Italy was a nation in mourning.

Scientists suspected an earthquake loosed the avalanche that dropped like a rock from Mount Tio into the deep, four-mile-long reservoir. Wednesday night and cascaded millions of tons of water over the Valont hydro-electric dam onto a sleeping countryside.

FLATTENED VILLAGES

Flattened villages dotted the valleys of the lower Valont and upper Piave rivers below the dam, a reinforced concrete, 673-foot-tall structure that is the third-highest dam in the world.

The disaster was in the Alps of northern Italy. An earthquake was recorded in the area at 10:53 p.m. Wednesday.

HAMLETS SWALLOWED

Witnesses said the water first splashed about 200 yards up the mountainside and swallowed two hamlets, then roared southward over the dam and down the valleys toward the Adriatic Sea, sweeping away whole villages, farms, roads and railway tracks.

Bodies of villagers and animals lay half buried in mud along the banks of the Piave. Dozens of bodies floated down the 12-foot crest of the flood. Several were recovered as far as 35 miles downstream.

American troops and airmen joined 10,000 Italian soldiers, police, firemen and Red Cross workers in the relief operations and a move to avert a new calamity—the helicopter transfer of isolated villagers from the area of Mount Tio threatened by another avalanche.

The monster dam withstood the onslaught of mud and water. Only an upper corner was tipped away, apparently by the landslide.

Round of Gaiety Passengers Living It Up

QUEBEC (CP)—An Alberta girl says the liner Empress of Canada is treating its strikebound passengers like royalty.

Jean Johnson of High River, Alta., said Thursday

passengers are being entertained from the moment they get up until after dark with games, dances, movies and other activity.

"They're going all out to keep us happy," she said in a ship-to-shore interview.

"The only thing is we're not getting any newspapers."

The ship has been anchored off nearby Ile d'Orleans since Tuesday as a result of the longshoremen's strike, which prevents the vessel from landing passengers.

Miss Johnson said the passengers have kept up to date on the strike by listening to the radio. Although they had no idea when the vessel would move, morale was high.

"On the whole, people are accepting it very well."

Empress Nears Deadline

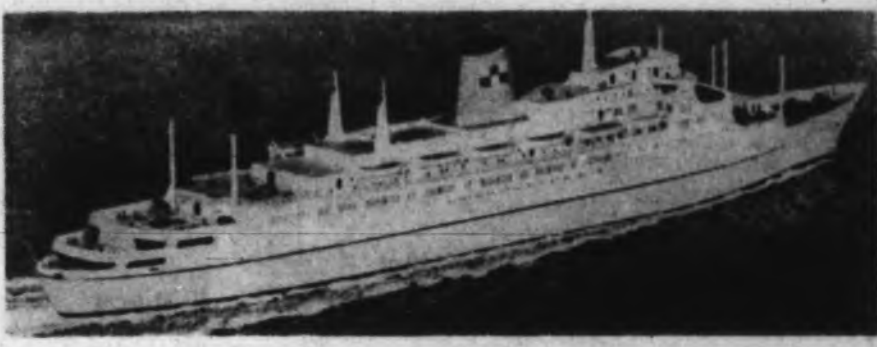

QUEBEC (CP)—The Empress of Canada, rebuffed from discharging her passengers here by the St. Lawrence River dock strike, was prevented Thursday night from making a run for Montreal where a court order has restricted the activities of strikers.

The transport department's signal service here said the striking longshoremen stopped a pilot from boarding the 27,300-ton vessel, and the skipper of the liner apparently decided against attempting the trip at night without an experienced guide.

A spokesman for the signal service said the service was told the liner would return to an anchorage off the Island of Orleans.

Plans for the trip to Montreal called for the liner, commanded by Capt. W. S. (Bill) Main, skipper of a British Navy submarine in the Second World War—to pick up a pilot while travelling at reduced speed past the Lewis ferry dock.

Witnesses said the ship stopped and then turned around. A CPR spokesman said the Empress' deadline for attempting to dock is today and the ship may have to return to England or leave her passengers off at some other port.

DOCKERS WARNED

MONTREAL (AP, UPI)—Negotiators, racing against time to head off possible federal intervention, huddled Thursday in a last-ditch effort to settle voluntarily the week-old St. Lawrence dock strike which has virtually paralyzed wheat shipments to Russia.

Some Wheat Moves

The top man of the longshoremen's union sat in for the first time.

The talks were well under way when an injunction granted by Quebec Superior Court in Montreal prohibited picketing on or about Montreal Harbor property, banned large gatherings of members of unions there and prohibited intimidation of members of other unions and of harbor clients.

WEEK-OLD

These developments came after Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson warned that his government is prepared to do "whatever necessary" to halt the week-old walkout.

Montreal Judge Rene Lippé, federal mediator in the bitter dispute, went into session at mid-afternoon with negotiators for the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) and the Shipping Federation of Canada (SFC).

The ILA's international president, Teddy Gleason of New York, entered the meeting in the downtown Montreal hotel saying he is determined "to do all I can to settle this thing."

He said he felt the longshoremen are confused about the issues and cannot understand why talks have gone on so long.

Union Trustee Bill Has Sharp Teeth

OTTAWA (CP)—Any person convicted of obstructing or hindering government trusteeship over marine unions in Canada will be liable to fines of $10,000 and jail terms of two years, the government disclosed Thursday night in its proposed trusteeship legislation.

The 10-page bill was given first reading in the Commons. (See also Page 35.)

The defence department said Dunlap had been relieved of duty several weeks before he killed himself.

'Navy's Sickness Needs Surgery at Top'

Cloud Cast on Every Officer, Says MP

OTTAWA (CP)—John Lloyd (L-Halifax) Thursday accused retired Commodore James Plomer of casting a cloud over the reputation of every officer in the Royal Canadian Navy.

Commodore Plomer, a committee witness for 3½ hours, said he is willing to cite "case after case" to substantiate his charges but that he would do this only "in confidence."

"I am not here to destroy people's characters," he said. He would be willing to name names in a closed session of the committee.

Donald MacInnis (PC-Cape Breton South) asked Commodore Plomer whether he was saying in effect: "It is he who knows, not what you know" in the navy.

Commodore Plomer agreed.

Commodore Plomer said that "for the sake of people's feelings" he would give names "under confidential circumstances."

Committee chairman Maurice Sauve (L—Îles-de-la-Madeleine) said he would take the matter under advisement.

The navy may reply to

Commodore Plomer's charges at Tuesday's committee meeting.

Grant Deschamps (L—Vancouver) said the navy deserves a "return engagement" in the near future.

The 47-year-old petite singer long had battled ill health.
